EC-COUNCIL EC Council Certified Incident Handler (ECIH v3) Sample Questions (Q125-Q130):

NEW QUESTION # 125

QualTech Solutions is a leading security services enterprise. Dickson works as an incident responder with this firm. He is performing vulnerability assessment to identify the security problems in the network, using automated tools to identify the hosts, services, and vulnerabilities present in the enterprise network.

Based on the above scenario, identify the type of vulnerability assessment performed by Dickson.

- A. Passive assessment
- B. Active assessment
- C. External assessment
- D. Internal assessment

Answer: B

Explanation:

An active assessment involves using automated tools to scan and probe the network actively to identify hosts, services, and vulnerabilities. This type of assessment directly interacts with the network components to gather information about the existing security posture, unlike passive assessments, which analyze traffic without sending packets to the target systems. Dickson's approach, employing automated tools to identify the network's hosts, services, and vulnerabilities, fits the definition of an active assessment. This method provides a more immediate understanding of the network's vulnerabilities, allowing for timely remediation actions.

References: The ECIH v3 program includes discussions on vulnerability assessment techniques, highlighting the differences between active and passive assessments and their applicability in identifying network security issues.

NEW QUESTION # 126

Stanley works as an incident responder at a top MNC based in Singapore. He was asked to investigate a cybersecurity incident that recently occurred in the company. While investigating the incident, he collected evidence from the victim systems. He must present this evidence in a clear and comprehensible manner to the members of a jury so that the evidence clarifies the facts and further helps in obtaining an expert opinion on the incident to confirm the investigation process. In the above scenario, which of the following characteristics of the digital evidence did Stanley attempt to preserve?

- A. Authenticity
- B. Completeness
- C. Believability
- D. Admissibility

Answer: D

Explanation:

In the scenario described, Stanley's effort to present evidence in a clear and comprehensible manner to the members of a jury, with the intention of clarifying facts and aiding in obtaining expert opinion, aligns with the characteristic of admissibility. The admissibility of digital evidence pertains to its acceptability in a court of law, which hinges on the evidence being collected, handled, and presented in a manner that complies with legal standards and procedures. This includes ensuring the evidence is relevant, reliable, and not overly prejudicial. By preparing to present the evidence in a way that the jury can understand and use to confirm the investigation process, Stanley is focusing on ensuring that the evidence meets the criteria for admissibility in the legal proceedings. Completeness, believability, and authenticity are also important characteristics of digital evidence, but the context provided indicates that Stanley's primary focus is on meeting the legal requirements for the evidence to be considered valid in court.

References: The Incident Handler (ECIH v3) certification materials cover the legal aspects of incident response, including the importance of ensuring the admissibility of evidence in legal proceedings as a fundamental objective of the evidence collection and presentation process.
