Dumps Data-Driven-Decision-Making Guide - Data-Driven-Decision-Making Updated Testkings

The contents of Data-Driven-Decision-Making exam torrent was all compiled by experts through the refined off textbooks. Hundreds of experts simplified the contents of the textbooks, making the lengthy and complex contents easier and more understandable. With Data-Driven-Decision-Making study tool, you only need 20-30 hours of study before the exam. Data-Driven-Decision-Making Guide Torrent provides you with a brand-new learning method. In the course of doing questions, you can memorize knowledge points. You no longer need to look at the complicated expressions in the textbook.

WGU VPC2Data-Driven Decision MakingC207 Sample Questions (Q106-Q111):

NEW QUESTION # 106

A student with a degree is presumed to already have a bachelor's degree. Which type of data does this represent?

- A. Ordinal data
- B. Ratio data
- C. Interval data
- D. Nominal data

Answer: D

Explanation:

This question refers to categorizing information rather than measuring it numerically. The phrase "a student with a degree" identifies a classification or label, not a value with mathematical meaning. Nominal data are used to place observations into distinct categories without any inherent numerical order or ranking. In this case, the student is being grouped according to degree status, which is a named category. Interval and ratio data are numerical measurement scales, so they do not apply here. Ordinal data involve ranked categories, such as low, medium, and high, or freshman through senior, where order matters. Here, the information does not describe rank or position; it simply identifies a class of person based on a characteristic. Even though the phrase mentions a bachelor's degree, the key issue is that the information is categorical rather than numeric.

Therefore, this is best understood as nominal data. In data analysis, recognizing nominal variables is important because they are usually summarized with counts, percentages, or category-based comparisons rather than means or standard deviations.

NEW QUESTION # 107

What does big data include?

- A. Inferential statistics for large companies
- B. Powerful extraction tools
- C. Both structured and unstructured data
- D. Information that can be analyzed with spreadsheets

Answer: C

Explanation:

Big data includes both structured and unstructured data. Structured data are organized in predefined formats such as rows and columns in databases, spreadsheets, or transaction systems. Unstructured data include forms such as emails, videos, social media content, images, audio files, sensor outputs, and free-text documents that do not fit neatly into traditional tabular formats. One of the defining features of big data is not just its size, but also its variety. This variety means organizations must work with multiple data types and sources to generate useful insights. The other options do not define what big data includes. Spreadsheets may handle small portions of data, but they do not define the concept itself. Powerful extraction tools may be used in big data environments, but they are tools rather than components of the data. Inferential statistics are analytical methods, not the data itself. Therefore, the best answer is that big data includes both structured and unstructured data.

NEW QUESTION # 108

Which term describes a response that appears the greatest number of times compared to other responses in a survey?

- A. Mean
- B. Median

- C. Outlier
- D. Mode

Answer: D

Explanation:

The mode is the value that appears most frequently in a dataset. In data-driven decision making, it is particularly useful for analyzing categorical or discrete survey data.

The median represents the middle value, the mean is the average, and outliers are extreme values. Because the question asks for the most frequently occurring response, the correct answer is A, mode.

NEW QUESTION # 109

Which step in the plan-do-check-act cycle is described as analyzing the results of an experiment and deciding whether those results can be improved?

- A. Act
- B. Check
- C. Plan
- D. Do

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Check phase of the Plan-Do-Check-Act (PDCA) cycle involves evaluating outcomes and analyzing results. In data-driven decision making, this step compares actual performance against expected results to determine whether objectives were met. During the Check phase, organizations review data, assess variation, and identify opportunities for improvement. Planning defines objectives, Doing implements changes, and Acting standardizes or adjusts processes based on evaluation.

Therefore, the correct answer is A, Check.

NEW QUESTION # 110

What describes fact-based decision-making according to quality management principles?

Choose 2 answers.

- A. Decisions have a marginal effect on relationships with suppliers.
- B. Decisions foster trust in plans.
- C. Decisions are based on the instincts of experienced leaders.
- D. Decisions reduce external bias.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Fact-based decision-making is a central quality management principle because it encourages organizations to rely on evidence, measurement, and analysis rather than assumptions or intuition alone. Decisions foster trust in plans when stakeholders can see that choices are grounded in objective information and sound reasoning.

This strengthens accountability and confidence in management actions. Fact-based decisions also help reduce external bias because they rely on verified information rather than opinions, pressure, or unsupported judgment. In contrast, decisions based only on the instincts of experienced leaders do not reflect the core meaning of fact-based management, even though experience may still be valuable. The statement about supplier relationships is not a defining description of fact-based decision-making and does not capture the principle itself. Quality management emphasizes using reliable data to guide planning, improve processes, and support consistent outcomes. Therefore, the two correct answers are that such decisions foster trust in plans and reduce external bias.
