NEW QUESTION # 87

A bicycle manufacturing company is implementing Dynamics 365 Supply Chain Management. The warehouse must pick and stage parts other than paint for bicycle assembly. Paint is at the production station. You need to configure the reservations for production. What should you configure? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.
NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

To configure the reservations for production, you should do the following:

* Define configuration for paint reservation: You should configure the Item model group for paint. The Item model group determines the inventory policies for an item, such as reservation, tracking, and costing<sup>1</sup>. You can set the reservation policy for paint to FIFO date-controlled, which means that the inventory reservation is controlled by a sorting date according to the FIFO principle<sup>2</sup>. You can also set the Backward from ship date option, which means that the inventory reservation is controlled by the last update physical date according to the FIFO rule<sup>2</sup>.

* Define the reservation principle for paint: You should set the reservation principle to Start. This means that inventory is reserved when production starts<sup>3</sup>. This way, you can ensure that paint is available at the production station when needed
