IDPX PRACTICE TEST QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

In surveying existing conditions of an older building before beginning space planning, an interior designer would probably need to seek expert consulting assistance to determine the

- A. existence of floor-mounted electrical outlets in an open space
- B. number of supply air diffusers in the space
- C. feasibility of opening a double-wide doorway in an existing wall
- D. presence of adequate water pressure to add a sink in a washroom

feasibility of opening a double-wide doorway in an existing wall

Which of the following statements is NOT true regarding the relationship between the designer and the consultants?

- A. The consultants become responsible for compliance with applicable codes by signing their drawings.
- B. The interior designer is the prime consultant and is liable to the owner for the consultant's work.
- C. The interior designer should involve the consultants late in the design development phase to ensure the client's approval on the design before moving forward.
- D. The interior designer is responsible for informing the consultants about the applicable code requirements for a job.

The interior designer should involve the consultants late in the design development phase to ensure the client's approval on the design before moving forward.

The client loves the look of a celebrity designer's crystal light fixture and wants it incorporated into the hotel lobby design. The cost of the fixtures is 50% of the total project budget for that area. The hotel designer finds a local artisan who can custom create something similar for a fraction of the cost, thereby providing the look the client wants and staying within budget.

This would be an example of?

- A. base bid specification or equal specification
 - B. value engineering
 - C. integrated project delivery
 - D. competitive bidding
- value engineering

CIDQ Interior Design Professional Exam IDPX Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q135-Q140):

135. Frage

Delivery of product directly to the client's address is known as

- A. freight on board
- B. pro forma
- C. sidemarked
- D. drop shipped

Antwort: D

Begründung:

Drop shipping refers to products shipped directly from the supplier to the client's address, bypassing the designer's warehouse, common in furniture procurement. Pro forma (A) is an invoice type, not delivery.

Sidemarked (B) means labeled for a specific job, not a delivery method. Freight on board (C) (FOB) defines shipping responsibility, not direct delivery. Drop shipped (C) matches the direct-to-client definition.

Verified Answer from Official Source: C - drop shipped

"Drop shipping is the delivery of products directly to the client's address from the supplier." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 5: Professional Practice) Explanation from Official Source: The NCIDQ defines drop shipping as a streamlined procurement option, reducing handling and storage for designers.

Objectives:

* Understand procurement terminology (IDPX Objective 5.6).

136. Frage

A mock-up is provided after client review of the finishes and systems furniture components. Upon inspection of the mock-up, the client observes that the fabric on the panels does not match their corporate standards.

What should the designer do NEXT?

- A. Request the furniture dealership to reproduce the mock-up
- B. Review the fabric submittal to ensure it works with the application
- C. Verify in the meeting minutes which finishes were selected
- D. Explain to the client that the mock-up cannot be altered

Antwort: B

Begründung:

The NCIDQ IDPX exam tests the designer's ability to manage FF&E (furniture, fixtures, and equipment) issues during the design process, particularly when discrepancies are identified in a mock-up. A mock-up is a physical sample of a design element (e.g., systems furniture) used to verify the design intent before full production.

* Option A (Explain to the client that the mock-up cannot be altered): This is incorrect, as the purpose of a mock-up is to identify and correct issues before production. Stating that it cannot be altered dismisses the client's valid concern and prevents resolution of the discrepancy.

* Option B (Verify in the meeting minutes which finishes were selected): While verifying meeting minutes might confirm the client's selections, it does not address the root cause of the discrepancy (e.g., whether the wrong fabric was ordered or if the selected fabric is unsuitable). This step is less immediate and actionable than reviewing the submittal.

* Option C (Request the furniture dealership to reproduce the mock-up): Requesting a new mock-up is premature without first identifying the cause of the discrepancy. If the fabric was incorrectly ordered or specified, reproducing the mock-up without correction will not resolve the issue.

* Option D (Review the fabric submittal to ensure it works with the application): This is the correct choice. The designer should first review the fabric submittal (the documentation submitted by the vendor detailing the fabric's specifications) to confirm whether the fabric matches the client's selection and corporate standards, and whether it is suitable for the application (e.g., meets durability or fire code requirements). This step identifies the cause of the discrepancy-whether it was an ordering error, a substitution, or a mismatch with standards-allowing the designer to take appropriate corrective action.

Verified Answer from Official Source:

The correct answer is verified from NCIDQ's official study materials on FF&E management and mock-up review processes.

"When a discrepancy is identified in a mock-up, the designer should first review the submittal to verify that the selected product matches the specifications and meets the application requirements before proceeding with corrections." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, FF&E Section) The NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide recommends reviewing the submittal as the first step to address discrepancies in a mock-up. This ensures the designer understands the cause of the issue (e.g., incorrect fabric, mismatch with standards) and can take informed action, making Option D the correct next step.

Objectives:

- * Understand the process for addressing FF&E discrepancies (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: FF&E).
- * Apply problem-solving skills during mock-up reviews (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: Contract Administration).

137. Frage

Upon review of all consultants' drawings, the designer notices that the placement of a water closet is not consistent with the contract documents. What should the designer do?

- A. No action is necessary because the contractor is obliged to follow the interior design documents
- B. Coordinate with the mechanical engineer and have the water closet relocated on the engineer's drawings
- C. Provide the dimensions of the water closet along with a notation on the interior design documents of the water closet's new location
- D. Coordinate the proper location with all parties through a change order

Antwort: D

Begründung:

The NCIDQ IDPX exam tests the designer's ability to manage discrepancies in construction documents and coordinate with other disciplines. A water closet's placement not aligning with the contract documents is a significant issue that requires formal action to ensure consistency across all drawings.

* Option A (Provide the dimensions of the water closet along with a notation on the interior design documents of the water closet's new location): This option implies accepting the incorrect location and updating only the interior design documents, which does not resolve the discrepancy across all consultants' drawings. It also does not involve the necessary parties to correct the error.

* Option B (Coordinate the proper location with all parties through a change order): This is the correct choice. The designer should coordinate with all relevant parties (e.g., mechanical engineer, contractor, owner) to ensure the water closet's location is corrected to match the contract documents. A change order is the formal process to modify the contract documents, ensuring all parties are aligned and the correction is documented.

* Option C (Coordinate with the mechanical engineer and have the water closet relocated on the engineer's drawings): While coordinating with the mechanical engineer is a step in the right direction, this option does not address the need for a formal change order or involve other parties (e.g., the owner, contractor). It is incomplete.

* Option D (No action is necessary because the contractor is obliged to follow the interior design documents): This is incorrect. The contractor may follow the interior design documents, but if other consultants' drawings (e.g., plumbing) are inconsistent, it can lead to errors during construction. The designer must proactively resolve the discrepancy to avoid issues.

Verified Answer from Official Source:

The correct answer is verified from NCIDQ's official study materials on coordination and contract administration.

"When a discrepancy is found in consultants' drawings, the designer should coordinate with all parties to resolve the issue and document the correction through a change order to ensure consistency across all contract documents." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Coordination Section) The NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide emphasizes the need to coordinate with all parties and use a change order to formally resolve discrepancies in contract documents. This ensures that all drawings are updated and aligned, making Option B the correct answer.

Objectives:

- * Understand the designer's role in resolving drawing discrepancies (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: Coordination).
- * Apply contract administration processes to manage changes (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: Contract Administration).

138. Frage

Information regarding product substitutions is found in the

- A. material specifications
- B. general requirements
- C. bid (tender) forms

Antwort: B

Begründung:

Product substitutions-requests to use alternatives to specified items-are governed by procedures outlined in the general requirements (CSI Division 01), which detail submission processes, approval criteria, and timelines. Bid forms (A) outline pricing and scope, not substitution rules. Material specifications (C) (Divisions 02-49) list specific products, not substitution protocols. General requirements (B) provide the administrative framework for substitutions, making it the correct location.

Verified Answer from Official Source:B - general requirements

"Information on product substitutions is located in the general requirements (Division 01), specifying the process for approval during bidding and construction." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 4: Specifications) Explanation from Official Source:The NCIDQ aligns with CSI MasterFormat, noting Division 01 as the section for procedural guidelines, including substitutions, to ensure consistency and control.

Objectives:

* Understand specification structure (IDPX Objective 4.1).

139. Frage

The office manager for a client signed a contract for design services. However, the owner refuses to pay the design fee because the office manager did not have the authority to sign the contract. This is an issue of

- A. contractual capacity
- B. mutual assent
- C. designer responsible disclaimer
- D. breach of contract

Antwort: A

Begründung:

Contractual capacity refers to the legal authority of a party to enter a binding agreement. If the office manager lacked authorization from the owner to sign the contract, the agreement may be voidable due to this capacity issue. Mutual assent (A) involves agreement between parties, not authority to sign. Breach of contract (B) occurs after a valid contract is violated, not applicable here. Designer responsible disclaimer (D) is unrelated to signing authority. The core issue is whether the office manager had the legal power to commit the owner, making C correct.

Verified Answer from Official Source:C - contractual capacity

"Contractual capacity ensures that the signing party has the legal authority to bind the entity to the agreement; lack of capacity can invalidate a contract." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 5: Professional Practice) Explanation from Official Source:The NCIDQ stresses that designers must verify the signer's authority to avoid unenforceable contracts, a key aspect of professional liability and practice.

Objectives:

* Understand legal principles of contracts (IDPX Objective 5.3).
