NEW QUESTION # 144

A data analyst is creating a report that will provide information about various regions, products, and time periods. Which of the following formats would be the MOST efficient way to deliver this report?

- A. A daily email with snapshots of regional summaries
- B. A static report with a different page for every filtered view
- C. A workbook with multiple tabs for each region
- D. A dashboard with filters at the top that the user can toggle

Answer: D

Explanation:

A dashboard with filters at the top that the user can toggle would be the most efficient way to deliver this report, because it allows the user to customize the view and explore different combinations of regions, products, and time periods. A workbook with multiple tabs for each region would be cumbersome and repetitive. A daily email with snapshots of regional summaries would not provide enough detail or interactivity. A static report with a different page for every filtered view would be too long and hard to navigate.
