- A. quality of the counseling relationship.
- B. successful completion of the client-counselor contract.
- C. use of phenomenological approaches.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 109

An adolescent is certain that everyone in the restaurant is acutely aware of the blemish on their forehead.

What developmental concept does this example illustrate?

- A. selective attention
- B. egocentricity
- C. inferiority

Answer: B

Explanation:

This scenario illustrates egocentricity, specifically the concept of the "imaginary audience," which is common in adolescence.

Adolescents often believe that others are highly attentive to their appearance and behavior.

According to Piaget, egocentrism in this stage leads teens to overestimate the degree to which they are the focus of others' attention.

"Egocentricity in adolescence results in the belief that others are as concerned with one's appearance and behavior as oneself."

NEW QUESTION # 110

A client was challenged by a counselor for not acknowledging that the client's child's behavior problems were influenced by the client's own behavior. The client responded, "You don't have any children, so how can you know how hard it can be when they act up?" Which form of resistance listed below describes how the client reacted to the counselor's challenge?

- A. deflecting and avoiding the issue
- B. devaluing the issue raised by the counselor
- C. disengaging from the counselor

Answer: A

Explanation:

In this scenario, the client is deflecting and avoiding the issue raised by the counselor. Rather than addressing the counselor's observation about the connection between their own behavior and their child's problems, the client shifts the focus to the counselor's lack of parental experience. This is a classic example of deflection and avoidance, both common forms of resistance in counseling.

It helps counselors identify whether a client is struggling to make a career decision and where they might need support in the decision-making process. This makes it especially useful for college students having difficulty choosing a career path.
