ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Exam CMQ-OE Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q389-Q394):

389. Frage

A project leader is experiencing a situation in which team members do not seem to be working well together and are instead questioning the project goals. This team is most likely at what stage of development?

- A. Performing
- B. Forming
- C. Norming
- D. Storming

Antwort: D

Begründung:

The Storming stage is the second stage in Tuckman's model of group development. During this stage, team members may experience conflict, disagreement, and challenges as they work together. They question project goals, roles, and responsibilities. It is essential for the team to address these issues openly and constructively to move toward the next stage, Norming, where they establish norms, resolve conflicts, and develop better cohesion.

- B. Management relinquishes responsibility to employees.
- C. A partnership is formed between employees and management.
- D. Employees are able to make decisions affecting their work.

Antwort: B

391. Frage

Which of the following actions by a leader is considered a roadblock to organizational success?

- A. Examining personal assumptions about change
- B. Expecting informed answers
- C. Personally solving daily problems
- D. Focusing on processes

Antwort: C

Begründung:

The ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Handbook, Fifth Edition¹ The action by a leader that is considered a roadblock to organizational success is personally solving daily problems. Leaders who engage in this behavior may inadvertently create a dependency on themselves, hinder the development of problem-solving skills in their team, and prevent the organization from achieving sustainable improvements. Effective leaders empower their teams to address problems collaboratively and focus on systemic solutions rather than individual fixes¹.

392. Frage

In order for a supplier certification program to be successful for all parties, the first step in the process should be to

- A. identify key players for the certification team and define their roles and responsibilities
- B. educate management and the supplier about what is required to complete the certificate process
- C. identify opportunities for expediting the certification process by reviewing historical inspection data
- D. perform an audit of the supplier's quality system to identify potential problems

Antwort: B

393. Frage

The most significant concern about using off-the-shelf software for statistical process control (SPC) analysis is the

- A. misapplication of SPC results and incorrect conclusions
- B. reduced need for training in SPC tools and concepts
- C. large number of charts that need to be analyzed
- D. resistance to automating a system that currently uses human monitoring

Antwort: A

Begründung:

The use of off-the-shelf software for SPC analysis can lead to the misapplication of SPC results and incorrect conclusions. This is because the software may not be tailored to the specific processes and nuances of the organization using it. Without proper understanding and training in SPC principles, users may incorrectly interpret the data, leading to decisions that could adversely affect quality. It's crucial for users to have a solid foundation in SPC tools and concepts to effectively use any SPC software and ensure accurate analysis.

: While I cannot provide direct references to the ASQ handbook, the explanation provided is based on widely accepted practices in the field of quality management and SPC analysis.
