NEW QUESTION # 67
Which of these automatic restocking actions are available in baseline? (Choose two.)

- A. Create a transfer order to restock from a vendor
- B. Create a task assigned to the stock room manage to create a purchase order
- C. Create a task assigned to stock room manager to contact procurement manager
- D. Create a new asset from any returned inventory
- E. Create a transfer order to restock from another stockroom

Answer: C,E

Explanation:
Automatic restocking actions are actions that are triggered by a scheduled job when the stock level of a hardware asset model falls below the minimum threshold defined in the stock rule1.
Automatic restocking actions can help to maintain the optimal inventory level and avoid stock shortages or overstocking1.
The baseline system provides two automatic restocking actions out of the box1:
Create a task assigned to stock room manager to contact procurement manager: This action creates a task record in the Hardware Asset Management application and assigns it to the stock room manager of the source stockroom. The task instructs the stock room manager to contact the procurement manager to initiate the purchase order process for the asset model that needs to be restocked1.
Create a transfer order to restock from another stockroom: This action creates a transfer order record in the Hardware Asset Management application and assigns it to the stock room manager of the source stockroom. The transfer order contains the details of the asset model, quantity, source stockroom, destination stockroom, and expected delivery date that need to be moved between the stockrooms1.
The other options are not available as automatic restocking actions in the baseline system, but they can be customized or added as additional actions if needed1. References:

- A. Model category
- B. Manufacturer
