NEW QUESTION # 126

What helps prevent drive-by compromise?

- A. Browsing known websites
- B. Incognito browsing
- C. VPN
- D. Ad blockers

Answer: D

Explanation:

A drive-by compromise occurs when malicious code is automatically downloaded and executed simply by visiting a compromised website-often through malicious advertising scripts (malvertising). According to SCAZT Section 4: Application and Data Security (Pages 85-87), ad blockers help prevent drive-by downloads by blocking these third-party ad scripts and redirections, which are commonly used in such attacks.

VPNs and private browsing modes (e.g., Incognito) do not provide protection against malicious content hosted on web pages.

A recent InfraGard news release indicates the need to establish a risk ranking for all on-premises and cloud services. The ACME Corporation already performs risk assessments for on-premises services and has applied a risk ranking to them. However, the cloud services that were used lack risk rankings. What Cisco Umbrella function should be used to meet the requirement?

- A. Secure Internet Gateway
- B. Domain Name Server Filtering
- C. App Discovery
- D. URL Categorization by Talos

Answer: C

Explanation:

The App Discovery function in Cisco Umbrella enables organizations to identify cloud applications in use across their environment, including unsanctioned or shadow IT services. This is crucial for risk assessments and ranking cloud services based on their risk profile.

App Discovery analyzes DNS and web traffic to detect SaaS applications and assigns a risk score to each app based on industry best practices and Cisco Talos threat intelligence.

It provides visibility into cloud service usage and supports decisions about which applications should be allowed, restricted, or blocked.

Section: Visibility and Assurance

Topic: Cisco Umbrella > App Discovery

Key Statement: "App Discovery helps identify cloud applications in use and provides risk ratings for each, allowing organizations to apply governance policies to risky or unsanctioned cloud services." Pages: 84-86
