A global IT service provider is migrating several mission-critical legacy applications to a cloud-native platform while its support team struggles with a growing backlog of incident and service requests. Development, operations, and support each maintain separate work queues, resulting in duplicated effort, handover delays, and unclear task priorities. As the Service Delivery Lead, which ONE of the following actions would MOST effectively coordinate and prioritize work across all teams to ensure smooth migration and timely support?

- A. Prioritize support tickets and migration tasks strictly according to their arrival time to ensure fairness
- B. Implement a RACI matrix for all migration and support activities to clarify roles, responsibilities, and approval authorities
- C. Establish a single, cross-functional Kanban board with work-in-progress (WIP) limits applied across development, operations, and support streams
- D. Conduct a detailed value stream mapping exercise to identify end-to-end process bottlenecks and handover delays

Answer: C
