PMI Agile Certified Practitioner Sample Questions (Q44-Q49):

NEW QUESTION # 44

A new Agile team is forming to address a high-priority project. Team members are dispersed over a wide geographic area. The Scrum Master and the team are currently defining their working agreement.

What should be part of the working agreement for a dispersed team?

- A. Meet face to face at regular intervals to enhance shared understanding.
- B. Define what project work can be done by dispersed team members.
- C. Identify support needed from external vendors to assist dispersed team members.
- D. Designate one person to communicate with all team members working at different locations.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct answer is B - Meet face to face at regular intervals to enhance shared understanding.

While Agile favors colocation, it acknowledges that distributed teams are common. The Agile approach encourages face-to-face communication as the most effective means of information sharing. When colocation isn't possible, periodic in-person meetings help establish team trust and understanding.

From the PMI Agile Practice Guide:

"Even with distributed teams, periodic face-to-face interactions are recommended to foster team cohesion and alignment. This is especially important during team formation and key planning activities." (PMI Agile Practice Guide, Section 2.3 - Communication and Collaboration) Mike Griffiths also advises:

"Remote teams benefit significantly from occasional in-person meetings. This improves relationships, shared understanding, and effectiveness in virtual collaboration." (Mike Griffiths, PMI-ACP Exam Prep Book, Chapter 4 - Team Performance) Why other options fall short:

- * A is about external support and not core to working agreements.
- * C undermines team transparency and agile principles of shared communication.
- * D could encourage fragmentation instead of collaboration.
