- B. Option C
- C. Option D
- D. Option A

Answer: C

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 151

Refer to the exhibit.

The definition of the YANG module and a RESTCONF query sent to a Cisco IOC XE device is shown. Which statement is correct if the RESTCONF interface responds with a 204 status code?

- A. The query updated the logging severity level or created it if not present on the device.
- B. The query failed to set the logging severity level due to an invalid path.
- C. The query retrieved the logging severity level.
- D. The query failed at retrieving the logging severity level.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Reference: The HTTP status code 204 (No Content) indicates that the server successfully processed the request but is not returning any content. In the context of a RESTCONF PATCH operation, this means that the query updated the logging severity level or created it if it was not present on the device. The 204 No Content response confirms that the request was successfully processed without errors. More details on RESTCONF status codes can be found in the RFC 8040.

NEW QUESTION # 152

In python, which expression checks whether the script returns a success status code when the Requests library is used?

- A. `response.status_code == requests.ok`
- B. `response.status_code == requests.codes.ok`
- C. `response.status_code != requests.codes.ok`
- D. `response.code == requests.codes.ok`

Answer: B

Explanation:

Reference:

The Requests library in Python uses `status_code` to represent the HTTP response status code. The `requests.codes.ok` is a convenient way to refer to the HTTP 200 status code, which indicates a successful request. The expression `response.status_code == requests.codes.ok` checks if the response status code is 200.
