CISI Investment Funds in Canada (IFC) Exam Sample Questions (Q164-Q169):

NEW QUESTION # 164

What is a key difference between marketable government bonds and treasury bills?

- A. Marketable government bonds actively trade in the secondary market while Treasury bills can only be bought from and sold to the government
- B. Treasury bills do not pay any coupon interest, while marketable bonds do
- C. Treasury bills trade in the over-the-counter market, while marketable bonds trade on the exchange
- D. Marketable government bonds may be sold at a discount while Treasury bills are sold at a premium

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Treasury bills (T-bills) have short maturities and are sold at a discount, with the return being the difference between the purchase price and par value at maturity, without coupon interest. Marketable bonds, however, pay coupon interest. The feedback from the document states:

"Because T-bills have such short maturities, they do not pay any coupon interest; instead, they are sold to investors at a discount from par value. When the T-bill matures, you receive par value. The difference between the price paid and the par value represents your return." Reference: Chapter 7 - Types of Investment Products and How They Are Traded Learning Domain:

NEW QUESTION # 165

Using historical market data, which investment strategy's purchasing power is least susceptible to inflation risk?

- A. Mixed-maturity Government of Canada bond portfolio
- B. Balanced allocation of equities and corporate bonds
- C. Laddered GIC strategy with maximum maturities of five years
- D. A diversified portfolio of equities

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 166

On which of the following does the Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA) impose requirements?

- A. organizations in the private sector subject to federal regulation
- B. departments and agencies of the Government of Canada
- C. departments and agencies of provincial governments
- D. consumers

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA) is a federal law that imposes requirements on the collection, use, and disclosure of personal information by organizations in the private sector that are subject to federal regulation, such as banks, telecommunications, transportation, and broadcasting. PIPEDA also applies to organizations that operate in provinces or territories that do not have substantially similar privacy legislation, such as Alberta, British Columbia, and Quebec. PIPEDA does not apply to consumers, departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, or departments and agencies of provincial governments, as they are governed by other privacy laws or regulations<sup>12</sup> References = Canadian Investment Funds Course, Unit 7: The Regulatory Environment, Lesson 3: Privacy Legislation, Section 7.3.1: Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA) 1; Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada website

NEW QUESTION # 167

An investor seeks an equity investment that will mirror the performance of the energy sector in Canada. She desires a low-cost, flexible alternative that can quickly be bought or sold. Which product is most suited to her needs?

- A. Energy sector segregated fund
- B. Direct investment in energy sector stocks
- C. Energy-sector index mutual fund
- D. Exchange-traded fund of energy sector stocks

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Exchange-traded funds (ETFs) are traded on exchanges, offering flexibility and lower costs compared to index mutual funds, making them ideal for tracking the energy sector. The feedback from the document states:

"Like stocks, and unlike index mutual funds, ETFs are traded on an exchange and can be bought and sold throughout the trading day. In this way, ETFs provide investors with a flexible way to participate in the performance of the underlying assets without having to acquire the assets directly, incurring high transaction costs. MERs on ETFs also tend to be lower than on other index and actively managed products." ### NEW QUESTION # 168

What best describes why mortgage funds generally have less sensitivity to changes in interest rates than bond funds?

- A. Many mortgage funds also hold T-bills and mortgage-backed securities, which are less volatile
- B. Mortgage funds are highly diversified, often holding over 10,000 individual mortgages
- C. Interest on mortgages is usually paid monthly, while interest on bonds is typically paid semi-annually
- D. Most mortgages held in mortgage funds are either NHA-insured or privately insured

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Mortgage funds have lower interest rate sensitivity than bond funds because mortgage rates change less frequently, and interest is paid monthly rather than semi-annually, reducing the impact of rate changes. The feedback from the document states:

"Interest rate sensitivity is expected to be lower for mortgage funds than for bond funds for two reasons. First, mortgage rates change much less frequently than interest rates on bonds... Second, mortgages by nature have less interest rate risk than bonds. The reason, in part, is that interest on mortgages is paid monthly, while interest on bonds is paid semi-annually."
