The AZ-900 certification exam is a great way to demonstrate your knowledge and proficiency in cloud computing and Microsoft Azure services. It is an entry-level certification that does not require any prior technical experience or prerequisites, making it an ideal starting point for beginners. AZ-900 exam is also suitable for professionals in non-technical roles who want to gain a foundational understanding of cloud computing and how it can benefit their organization.

Objectives of AZ-900 Assessment

If you download AZ-900 blueprint, you will discover that each main knowledge area is divided into subtopics that help the candidate go deep into understanding Microsoft Azure. This is a short description of each of the objectives:

Cloud concepts – this chapter helps you define how cloud services benefit the company you are working for and why you should consider installing them. Also, exam-takers will learn more about the differences between PaaS and SaaS concepts. Finally, the ability to differentiate a public cloud model from private and hybrid ones is also improved during studying this theme.

Core Azure services – any IT professional who takes AZ-900 Exam will have to demonstrate that they know how to handle the main Azure architectural components. Also, they will understand how Virtual machines, App Services, or Azure Kubernetes Service work. Also, one should gain skills in describing and identifying various products related to the Internet of Things, Analytics, or Big Data.

Notions related to compliance, trust, privacy, and security – if they want to implement Azure solutions successfully, candidates will have to prove that they understand Azure Network connectivity, Network Security Groups, or Azure Firewall. This chapter also includes principles related to Azure Identity applications and other Azure tools that will help the users monitor and ensure the highest level of privacy and compliance in their operations.

Azure pricing, Lifecycles, and Service Level Agreements – This is the final pillar that checks the exam-takers capability to define SLAs, service lifecycles, and Azure subscriptions. To master this topic, applicants must also understand how to use different management concepts and planning tools related to Azure infrastructure.
