NEW QUESTION # 66
Universal Containers (UC) has a strict requirement to authenticate users to Salesforce using their mainframe credentials. The mainframe user store cannot be accessed from a SAML provider. UC would also like to have users in Salesforce created on the fly if they provide accurate mainframe credentials.
How can the Architect meet these requirements?

- A. Implement OAuth User-Agent Flow on the mainframe; use a Registration Handler to create the user on the fly.
- B. Use the SOAP API to create the user when created on the mainframe; implement Delegated Authentication.
- C. Use a Salesforce Login Flow to call out to a web service and create the user on the fly.
- D. Implement Just-In-Time Provisioning on the mainframe to create the user on the fly.

Answer: D

Explanation:
The best way to meet the requirements of UC is to implement Just-In-Time Provisioning on the mainframe to create the user on the fly. According to the Salesforce documentation, "Just-in-time provisioning lets you create or update user accounts on the fly when users log in to Salesforce using single sign-on (SSO)." This way, UC can authenticate users to Salesforce using their mainframe credentials and also create or update their user accounts in Salesforce without using a SAML provider. Therefore, option C is the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 67
Universal containers(UC) has decided to build a new, highly sensitive application on Force.com platform. The security team at UC has decided that they want users to provide a fingerprint in addition to username/Password to authenticate to this application. How can an architect support fingerprints as a form of identification for salesforce Authentication?

- A. Use Delegated Authentication with callouts to a third-party fingerprint scanning application.
- B. Use an appexchange product that does fingerprint scanning with native salesforce identity confirmation.
- C. Use salesforce Two-factor Authentication with callouts to a third-party fingerprint scanning application.
- D. Use custom login flows with callouts to a third-party fingerprint scanning application.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 68
Universal Containers (UC) uses Salesforce to allow customers to keep track of the order status. The customers can log in to Salesforce using external authentication providers, such as Facebook and Google. UC is also leveraging the App Launcher to let customers access an of platform application for generating shipping labels.
The label generator application uses OAuth to provide users access. What license type should an Architect recommend for the customers?

- A. Customer Community Plus license
- B. Identity license
- C. External Identity license
- D. Customer Community license

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 69

Universal containers (UC) has a mobile application that calls the salesforce REST API. In order to prevent users from having to enter their credentials everytime they use the app, UC has enabled the use of refresh Tokens as part of the salesforce connected App and updated their mobile app to take advantage of the refresh token. Even after enabling the refresh token, Users are still complaining that they have to enter their credentials once a day. What is the most likely cause of the issue?

- A. The app is requesting too many access Tokens in a 24-hour period
- B. The refresh token expiration policy is set incorrectly in salesforce
- C. The Oauth authorizations are being revoked by a nightly batch job.
- D. The users forget to check the box to remember their credentials.

Answer: B

Explanation:
The most likely cause of the issue is that the refresh token expiration policy is set incorrectly in Salesforce. A refresh token is a credential that allows a connected app to obtain a new access token when the previous one expires1. The refresh token expiration policy determines how long a refresh token is valid for2. If the policy is set to a short duration, such as 24 hours, the users have to enter their credentials once a day to get a new refresh token. To prevent this, the policy should be set to a longer duration, such as "Refresh token is valid until revoked" or "Refresh token expires after 90 days of inactivity"2.

NEW QUESTION # 70

Universal containers(UC) wants to integrate a third-party reward calculation system with salesforce to calculate rewards. Rewards will be calculated on a schedule basis and update back into salesforce. The integration between Salesforce and the reward calculation system needs to be secure. Which are the recommended best practices for using Oauth flows in this scenario? Choose 2 answers

- A. Oauthjwt bearer token flow
- B. Oauth SAML bearer assertion flow
- C. Oauth Username-password flow
- D. Oauth refresh token flow

Answer: A,D

Explanation:
Explanation
OAuth refresh token flow and OAuth JWT bearer token flow are the recommended best practices for using OAuth flows in this scenario. These flows are suitable for server-to-server integration scenarios where the client application needs to access Salesforce resources on behalf of a user. The OAuth refresh token flow allows the client application to obtain a long-lived refresh token that can be used to request new access tokens without requiring user interaction. The OAuth JWT bearer token flow allows the client application to use a JSON Web Token (JWT) to assert its identity and request an access token. Both flows provide a secure and efficient way to integrate with Salesforce and the reward calculation system. OAuth SAML bearer assertion flow is not a recommended best practice for using OAuth flows in this scenario because it requires the client application to obtain a SAML assertion from an identity provider, which adds an extra layer of complexity and dependency. OAuth username-password flow is not a recommended best practice for using OAuth flows in this scenario because it requires the client application to store the user's credentials, which poses a security risk and does not support two-factor authentication.
