Response:

- A. Ignore the threat since no successful attacks have occurred yet
- B. Implement targeted phishing awareness training for executives, deploy email filtering and anti-phishing technologies, and establish multi-factor authentication for sensitive accounts
- C. Disable all email accounts to prevent phishing attacks
- D. Assume that executives will eventually fall victim and focus on remediation

答案： B

問題 #108

You are tasked with leading your cybersecurity team through a company-wide transition to a zero-trust security model. Some senior members of your team are resistant to the change, citing concerns about the workload and potential disruptions. How would you manage the situation to implement the new security model effectively?

Response:

- A. Insist that the team members comply with the transition without addressing their concerns
- B. Organize a meeting to discuss the benefits of zero trust, provide resources to ease the workload, and implement a phased approach to adoption
- C. Reassign the senior members to other projects and hire external consultants to manage the transition
- D. Delay the implementation until all team members fully agree with the change

答案： B

問題 #109

Your organization operates in the financial sector and has been receiving intelligence reports about a growing number of ransomware attacks targeting similar institutions. How should you adjust your cybersecurity strategy to mitigate the risk of a ransomware attack?

Response:

- A. Ignore the reports since your organization hasn't been targeted yet
- B. Wait for an attack to occur before taking any action
- C. Strengthen your incident response plan, implement regular backups of critical data, perform network segmentation, and provide employee training on phishing prevention
