NEW QUESTION # 180
Which of the following descriptions of WLAN site surveys in different typical scenarios is correct?
(Multiple choice)

- A. The main load-bearing columns and partitions in office surveys affect coverage. If the AP is an integral ceiling, it should be placed near the maintenance port. If the AP is a metal ceiling, you can choose to place the AP under the ceiling or mount it on the wall.
- B. Ward inspection scenarios have high requirements for coverage strength, roaming effect, and bandwidth requirements. At the same time, attention should be paid to interference from medical equipment or areas where Wi-Fi signals are not allowed.
- C. The on-site environment of the stadium is complex and wiring is difficult, so the weak current room and wiring should be confirmed with the property management; if the distance is too far, you may need to consider adding an external switch, and the survey should focus on the mutual interference between APs and the installation method

- D. If the walls of school classrooms are made of reinforced concrete, the signal attenuation is relatively large. It is best to measure the attenuation during the survey. The location of the weak current room should be paid attention to in the teaching building.
