The array functions from Spark SQL are a subset of the collection functions that operate on array columns<sup>1</sup>. They provide an ability to work with complex, nested data ingested from JSON files or other sources<sup>2</sup>. For example, the `explode` function can be used to transform an array column into multiple rows, one for each element in the array<sup>3</sup>. The `array_contains` function can be used to check if a value is present in an array column<sup>4</sup>. The `array_join` function can be used to concatenate all elements of an array column with a delimiter. These functions can be useful for processing JSON data that may have nested arrays or objects.
