NEW QUESTION # 61

The Arbitrage Pricing Theory (APT) assumes investors can sell short. This involves:

- A. Selling lots of securities over a short time frame
- B. Not selling the whole of your shareholding in one trade
- C. Selling your shares and buying them back a short time later
- D. Selling something you do not own, intending to buy it back at a lower price later

Answer: D

Explanation:

Short selling is a trading strategy where an investor sells borrowed securities, expecting the price to decline, and then repurchases them at a lower price.

* Why is Option B Correct?

* Short sellers borrow shares, sell them at the current price, and later buy them back at a lower price to return to the lender, profiting from the price difference.

* APT assumes investors can sell short to exploit mispricings in multiple risk factors.

* Why Not Other Options?

* A (Not selling the whole shareholding) # Short selling does not involve owning shares.

* C (Selling & buying back shortly after) # Describes day trading, not short selling.

* D (Selling many securities quickly) # Short selling is not about trading speed, but betting on price declines.

NEW QUESTION # 62

Shareholder protection ensures sufficient funds are available to purchase the shareholding of a major shareholder on their death. It does this by:

- A. Establishing a policy on each of the shareholding directors' lives
- B. Investing in the shares of the company
- C. Being written into the Articles of Association
- D. Providing term assurance to all of the company's employees

Answer: A

Explanation:

Shareholder protection insurance is a crucial financial planning tool for businesses. It ensures that if a major shareholder dies, the remaining shareholders have the funds necessary to buy out the deceased's shares, preventing business disruption.

* How It Works:

* Each major shareholder is insured via a life insurance policy (answer C).

* If a shareholder dies, the insurance pays out a lump sum to allow the surviving shareholders to buy the deceased's shares.

* This prevents shares from being passed to family members who may not be involved in the business.

* Why Not Other Options?

* A (Investing in shares of the company) # This does not create liquidity to buy shares on a shareholder's death.

* B (Providing term assurance to employees) # This applies to employee benefits, not shareholder buyouts.

* D (Articles of Association) # These govern company rules but do not provide funding to purchase shares.

NEW QUESTION # 63

Why do investors demand a risk premium?

- A. To compensate them for accepting additional risk
- B. So that they can outperform the benchmark
- C. To cover the expenses of the fund manager
- D. To cover the tax payments on profitable trades

Answer: A

Explanation:

A risk premium is the additional return investors require for taking on higher risk.

* Formula: $\text{Risk Premium} = \text{Expected Return} - \text{Risk-Free Rate}$

* Why It Exists:

* Riskier investments (e.g., stocks, high-yield bonds) must offer higher returns to attract investors.

* Lower-risk assets (e.g., government bonds) have lower expected returns.

* Example:

* If a government bond yields 2%, but an equity portfolio yields 8%, the equity risk premium is 6%.
