NEW QUESTION # 155

Which two statements are true for Mass Order (2 answers)

- A. The variation product is leveraged for SKUs.
- B. Mass Order pricing is done via a batch job.
- C. Mass order works with the default wishlists
- D. Mass Order is mobile ready with the ccrz templates.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Mass Order pricing is done via a batch job, which means that the prices are not calculated in real time, but rather at a scheduled time. Mass order works with the variation product, which is a product that has multiple SKUs with different attributes, such as size or color. Mass order does not work with the default wishlists, which are used to store products that the customer wants to buy later. Mass order is not mobile ready with the ccrz templates, which are the default templates for the storefront pages. NEW QUESTION # 156

Which two guidelines should a developer consider when migrating aura components to LWC?

- A. Migrate one component and then determine whether additional effort would make sense
- B. Start with migrating trees of components (components within components)
- C. Force all developers to write any new components using Lightning web components
- D. Start with simple components that only render UI

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Explanation

When migrating aura components to LWC, a developer should consider two guidelines: migrate one component and then determine whether additional effort would make sense and start with simple components that only render UI. Migrating one component and then determining whether additional effort would make sense allows the developer to evaluate the benefits and costs of migration and decide whether to continue or stop. Migrating simple components that only render UI allows the developer to leverage the performance and modern features of LWC without much complexity or dependency on other components or services. Starting with migrating trees of components (components within components) is not a good guideline, as it can introduce more challenges and dependencies that can complicate the migration process. Forcing all developers to write any new components using Lightning web components is not a good guideline either, as it can create inconsistency and confusion among developers and users. NEW QUESTION # 157

In which three different ways can a theme be enabled in Salesforce B2B Commerce? (3 answers)

- A. Account
- B. A per user setting
- C. Dynamically through a hook
- D. A Storefront setting
- E. An Account Group field value

Answer: C,D,E

Explanation:

A theme can be enabled in Salesforce B2B Commerce in three different ways:

* A Storefront setting: The theme can be specified in the Storefront Configuration settings in CCAAdmin.

This will apply the theme to all users who access the storefront.

* An Account Group field value: The theme can be specified in the Theme field of an Account Group record in Salesforce. This will apply the theme to all users who belong to that account group.

* Dynamically through a hook: The theme can be specified dynamically by extending the `cc_hk_theme` hook. This hook allows changing the theme based on various factors, such as the user, cart, product, or storefront. For example, the hook can apply a different theme for a specific product category or for a specific user segment.

NEW QUESTION # 158

Which two are considered discrete units of work (code units) within a transaction in the debug logs?

- A. Web service invocation
- B. Validation rule
- C. Lightning component load
- D. Apex class

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Explanation

Two data types that are considered discrete units of work (code units) within a transaction in the debug logs are web service invocation and Apex class. A discrete unit of work (code unit) is a segment of executable code that runs as part of a transaction in Salesforce. A transaction is a sequence of operations that are treated as a single unit of work and are executed under certain isolation and consistency rules. A transaction can consist of one or more discrete units of work (code units) that are executed sequentially or concurrently depending on various factors such as triggers, asynchronous calls, or limits. A debug log is a record of database operations, system processes, and errors that occur when executing a transaction or running unit tests in Salesforce. A debug log can capture information about each discrete unit of work (code unit) within a transaction, such as its start time, end time, duration, events, variables, and limits. A web service invocation is a type of discrete unit of work (code unit) that involves calling an external web service from Apex code using SOAP or REST protocols. A web service invocation can be synchronous or asynchronous depending on the method used to make the callout. A web service invocation can be captured in a debug log with its details and results. An Apex class is another type of discrete unit of work (code unit) that involves executing Apex code that defines a class with properties and methods. An Apex class can be invoked from various sources such as triggers, Visualforce pages, Lightning components, or API calls. An Apex class can be captured in a debug log with its details and results. A validation rule is not a type of discrete unit of work (code unit) within a transaction in the debug logs, as it is not a segment of executable code but rather a formula expression that defines a business rule for a field or object. A validation rule can be evaluated during a transaction and cause an error if the rule condition is not met, but it cannot be captured as a separate code unit in a debug log. A Lightning component load is not a type of discrete unit of work (code unit) within a transaction in the debug logs either, as it is not a segment of executable code but rather an event that occurs when a Lightning component is rendered on a web page or application. A Lightning component load can be measured by various performance tools such as Lightning Inspector or Lighthouse, but it cannot be captured as a separate code unit in a debug log. NEW QUESTION # 159

Which category can receive signaling from a Lightning Message Channel?

- A. only descendents (i.e. children)
- B. page (anywhere on it)
- C. only direct siblings
- D. only ancestors (i.e. parents)

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Lightning Message Channel can receive signaling from any component on a page (anywhere on it). A Lightning Message Channel is a service that allows components to communicate with each other across different Salesforce UI technologies, such as Aura, LWC, Visualforce, and Lightning web apps. A component can subscribe to a message channel and receive events that are published by another component on the same or different page. The message channel acts as a mediator that delivers the events to the subscribers. A Lightning Message Channel does not receive signaling only from descendants (i.e., children), only from direct siblings, or only from ancestors (i.e., parents), as these are limitations of event-based communication.
