Snowflake SnowPro Advanced: Data Analyst Certification Exam Sample

Questions (Q24-Q29):

NEW QUESTION # 24

You have a Snowflake table 'EMPLOYEES' with columns 'EMPLOYEE ID' (INT, PRIMARY KEY), 'SALARY' and 'DEPARTMENT' (VARCHAR). You need to enforce the following business rules: 1. 'SALARY' must be a positive value. 2. 'DEPARTMENT' must be one of the following values: 'SALES', 'MARKETING', 'ENGINEERING'. 3. If the Employee is in 'SALES' Department, Salary should be between 50000 and 100000. Which of the following is the most appropriate and efficient approach using Snowflake constraints and features?

- A. Use CHECK constraint for SALARY, Create a Lookup table for Departments, and apply a Foreign key relationship for DEPARTMENT field in EMPLOYEE table.
- B. Enforce rules using stored procedure at the time of insertion and updation.
- C. Use CHECK constraints for both rules and a third CHECK constraint to combine rules 2 and 3 to apply on each record.
- D. Use a CHECK constraint for 'SALARY > 0', a CHECK constraint 'DEPARTMENT IN ('SALES', 'MARKETING', 'ENGINEERING')', and a third CHECK constraint 'CASE WHEN DEPARTMENT = 'SALES' THEN SALARY BETWEEN 50000 AND 100000 ELSE TRUE END'.
- E. Use a CHECK constraint for 'SALARY > 0', an ENUM type for 'DEPARTMENT', and a TRIGGER to enforce the salary range rule for the 'SALES' department.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Option D is the most appropriate and efficient. CHECK constraints are designed for these types of validations. The 'CASE' statement within the third CHECK constraint allows conditional validation based on the 'DEPARTMENT' value. CHECK constraints are enforced at the time of record insert or update. Stored procedures could be an option but are not the most appropriate. Snowflake does not directly support ENUM types for column definitions. Creating Lookup table with Foreign key is another option.

NEW QUESTION # 25

You have a large dataset in Snowflake containing customer order information stored in a table named 'ORDERS' with columns 'ORDER_ID' (INT), 'CUSTOMER_ID' (INT), 'ORDER_DATE' (DATE), 'TOTAL_AMOUNT' (FLOAT), and 'DISCOUNT_APPLIED' (BOOLEAN). You need to use Snowsight dashboards to analyze customer spending behavior and identify potential outliers. Which of the following visualizations, combined with appropriate SQL queries, would be MOST effective in identifying customers with unusually high or low order values? (Select TWO)

- A. Option E
- B. Option B
- C. Option A
- D. Option D
- E. Option C

Answer: C,E

Explanation:

Options A and C are the most effective. A Box Plot (A) is ideal for identifying outliers in a distribution. By visualizing the distribution of total order amounts per customer, you can easily spot customers with unusually high or low spending. A Scatter Plot (C) directly shows the relationship between customer ID and total spending, making it easy to visually identify outliers based on their position relative to other data points. Option B is more suitable for trend analysis over time, and options D and E are useful but don't directly highlight individual customer outliers in terms of order value.

NEW QUESTION # 26

When customizing data presentations in dashboards through filtering and editing techniques, what benefits do these methods offer? (Select all that apply)

- A. Simplified data representation
- B. Improved data accuracy
- C. Limited data exploration
- D. Enhanced data relevancy

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Customization through filtering and editing enhances data accuracy and relevancy in dashboards.

NEW QUESTION # 27

Consider the following Snowflake table schema and data: 'CREATE TABLE products (product_id INTEGER, product_name VARCHAR, properties VARIANT);' Data: 'INSERT INTO products VALUES (1, 'Laptop', 'silver', 'storage': '512GB', 'price': 1200.00}));' 'INSERT INTO products VALUES (2, 'Mouse', 'wireless', 'dpi': 1600, 'price': 25.00}));' 'INSERT INTO products VALUES (3, 'Keyboard', PARSE JSON('{"layout": "US", "backlit": true, "price": Which of the following SQL queries will return the 'product_name' and 'price' for all products where the 'price' is greater than 50, ensuring that the 'price' is treated as a numeric value for comparison? Select all that apply

- A.
- B.
- C.
- D.
- E.

Answer: D,E

Explanation:

Options B and E are correct. Option B explicitly casts 'properties:price' to a 'NUMBER' data type before the comparison, ensuring that the comparison is performed numerically. Option E casts 'properties:price' to a data type and uses TRY_TO_NUMBER to handle potential errors gracefully. Option A is incorrect because Snowflake treats the value extracted from the VARIANT as a string and the string comparison will lead to incorrect results. Options C and D don't work without casting to VARCHAR

NEW QUESTION # 28

How do secure views contribute to data analysis practices in terms of access control and data security?

- A. They restrict data access but don't impact data security.
- B. They prevent the creation of materialized views.
- C. Secure views enhance data security while allowing selective data access.
- D. Secure views limit data accessibility for improved security.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Secure views enhance data security while allowing selective data access.
