NEW QUESTION # 67

An AEM Sites implementation is migrating from on-premise to AEM as a Cloud Service. Previously, the application was deployed in a single package for both code and access policy nodes. After initial deployment and testing in the new infrastructure, it is reported that user permissions are not working as expected.

What change should the Architect make to address this issue?

- A. Move access policy nodes to a dedicated package and install manually
- B. Refactor access policy nodes to Apache Sling JCR Repoint scripts in the same package
- C. Update package metadata to use MergePreserve for handling access policy nodes
- D. Document permissions and request the Customer Success Engineer to configure

Answer: B

Explanation:

Refactor access policy nodes to Apache Sling JCR Repoint scripts in the same package<sup>1</sup>. According to Adobe Experience Manager documentation<sup>23</sup>, access policy nodes are used to control who can access a policy-protected document. However, they are not supported by AEM as a Cloud Service and need to be refactored using Apache Sling JCR Repoint scripts.

NEW QUESTION # 68

Content editors are uploading and editing thousands of PDFs daily, and notice a slow down of the AEM system over time while searching for assets in the DAM. The PDFs content does not need to be searchable.

What would the AEM architect do to improve performance?

- A. Increase the number of maximum parallel jobs for the DAM Update Asset workflows
- B. Disable Tika text extraction for the damAssetLucene index
- C. Create a custom Lucene index
- D. Upsize the authoring instance to a larger tier

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 69

A website built on AEM Sites displays the company's stock price in the footer of all pages. The stock data is retrieved from a third party REST service using two-way SSL and rendered in an AEM component using HTL. During performance testing in the last development sprint it becomes apparent that the third party service sometimes takes up to 30 seconds to respond, which degrades the overall site performance.

How should an Architect address this issue?

- A. Load the stock data component asynchronously
- B. Call the REST service directly from the browser
- C. Add a 5 second timeout to the REST call
- D. Temporarily remove the component from all content

Answer: A

Explanation:

"loading the stock data component asynchronously can improve the site performance by not blocking the page rendering while waiting for the REST service response".

NEW QUESTION # 70

A customer has an international presence and a strong brand image. The customer considers the exceptional quality images used for both print and on the website to be essential for its business. The customer uses AEM 6.5 managed services with a configuration of 2 dispatchers, 2 publishers, and 1 author.

The original images can weigh up to 500Mb with videos weighing even more. Renditions are generated after files are uploaded to AEM DAM by the Design team so the Authoring team can use them on the website.

The teams report issues with platform stability and slowness. Visitors report that images look pixelated on some screens and pages are very slow to load.

Which two actions should the Architect take to resolve these issues? (Choose two.)

- A. Split AEM Assets and Sites in two different stacks and use Connected Assets
- B. Train the design team to upload smaller assets and save the originals elsewhere
- C. Allocate more memory to ImageMagick and FFmpeg
- D. Optimize renditions for the different viewports used by the visitors
- E. Add more dispatchers and publishers to the AEM configuration

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

"optimizing renditions for different viewports can improve the image quality and page load speed for visitors. Splitting AEM Assets and Sites in two different stacks and using Connected Assets can reduce the load on the author server and improve platform stability".
