NEW QUESTION # 84
Requirements conflict resolution is considered to be part of which major RE task?

- A. Validation
- B. Documentation
- C. Management
- D. Elicitation

Answer: D

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
According to the CPRE syllabus, Requirements Engineering comprises four major tasks: elicitation, documentation, validation and management. Elicitation is not just "collecting" requirements; it also includes dealing with conflicts that emerge when different stakeholders express incompatible needs, expectations or priorities. Conflict analysis, negotiation and resolution are therefore components of elicitation activities.
Validation focuses on checking correctness and quality of documented requirements, while management handles versioning, traceability and change control. Documentation is about representing requirements in suitable forms. Thus, conflict resolution is explicitly placed under elicitation.

NEW QUESTION # 85
Writing requirements using natural language can be improved by the following actions, EXCEPT:

- A. Having caution when using nominalizations.
- B. Using glossaries.
- C. Using universal quantifiers with care.
- D. Not writing short sentences.

Answer: D

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
The syllabus lists several recommendations for clearer natural-language requirements: use short, well- structured sentences; avoid or carefully manage nominalizations (turning verbs into nouns); be cautious with universal quantifiers such as "always" or "all"; and use project glossaries for consistent terminology. Long, complex sentences increase the risk of ambiguity and misunderstanding. Thus, the advice is to write short sentences, not to avoid them. Options B-D are valid improvements; statement A contradicts the guidance and is therefore the correct "EXCEPT".
