ASET Ethics Examination-ASET Professional Practice Exam (PPE) Sample Questions (Q76-Q81):

NEW QUESTION # 76

Which of the following materials or products are protected under copyright law?

- A. Logos, symbols, slogans, and designs
- B. New devices, machines, processes, or compositions
- C. Original literature and works of art
- D. Configurations in integrated electronic circuits

Answer: C

Explanation:

Intellectual property (IP) law in Canada is divided into several distinct categories, each designed to protect different types of creations. Copyright law specifically protects original literary, artistic, musical, and dramatic works. In an engineering technology context, this includes technical manuals, written reports, software code, architectural drawings, and original training materials. Copyright is automatic upon creation and prevents unauthorized copying, publishing, or performance of the work.

The other options fall under different IP protections: logos, symbols, and slogans are protected by Trademark law (to distinguish a company's brand in the marketplace); configurations of electronic circuits are protected by the Integrated Circuit Topography Act; and new, useful, and non-obvious devices, machines, or manufacturing processes are protected by Patent law. Understanding these distinctions is critical for ASET professionals to ensure they properly protect their employers' IP and do not inadvertently infringe on the intellectual property rights of competitors or third parties.

NEW QUESTION # 77

A regulated member of ASET is ill and is taking extended sick leave from work. The member is not able to complete any continuing professional development (CPD) activities due to the nature of the illness, but is planning to return to work as soon as possible.

Which of the following actions should the member take?

- A. Resign membership with ASET as it is not possible to complete the CPD requirement.
- B. Find a way to complete the mandatory CPD activities regardless of the illness.
- C. No action is required on the part of the member.
- D. Contact ASET to request an exemption to the CPD requirement for the duration of the illness.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Continuing Professional Development (CPD) is a mandatory requirement for regulated members of ASET to ensure they maintain their competency, keep their skills current, and continue to protect the public throughout their careers. However, ASET recognizes that unexpected life events, such as severe illness, parental leave, or periods of prolonged unemployment, can legitimately prevent a member from meeting their annual CPD obligations. In situations involving extended medical leave, it is inappropriate and potentially harmful to the member's well-being to force compliance, nor is it necessary for them to resign their hard-earned professional membership. Instead, the correct professional protocol, as outlined in ASET's practice guidelines, is for the member to proactively contact ASET to request a formal exemption or reduction in their CPD requirements for the duration of their absence from active practice. By officially communicating with the regulatory body, the member maintains their good standing while responsibly managing their professional obligations during a period of personal hardship, ensuring total compliance with the administrative rules of the association.

NEW QUESTION # 78

A local institute of technology has asked a regulated member to present a seminar to the graduating class in the member's field of technology. Since economic times are poor at present, it is the member's opinion that some of these students may soon be competing with the member in the job market. The member decides to leave out some industry information in the seminar. Did the member act unethically?

- A. The member acted ethically because it is the member's discretion as to what information to include in the seminar.
- B. The member acted unethically by accepting the invitation to present the seminar given the member's concerns about the economy.
- C. The member acted unethically by serving as a poor role model for the profession and providing incomplete information to the students.
- D. The member acted ethically as it is fair to omit information from a seminar that would give students a competitive edge in the market.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The ASET Code of Ethics requires members to "promote public knowledge and appreciation of applied science, information, and engineering technology," and to conduct themselves with integrity, fairness, and courtesy toward colleagues. When a professional accepts an invitation to educate students, they are acting as an ambassador and role model for the profession. Deliberately withholding pertinent industry information from a graduating class out of self-serving fear of future job competition is a profound breach of professional integrity. It violates the spirit of knowledge-sharing that drives the profession forward and fails to support the next generation of technologists. By allowing personal financial anxiety to compromise the quality and honesty of the educational seminar, the member acts selfishly and unethically. A true professional recognizes that a well-educated, competent workforce ultimately benefits the industry and the public, and they do not view emerging graduates as adversaries to be sabotaged through omissions.

NEW QUESTION # 79

Which of the following statements describes termination for just cause?

- A. Termination through forced resignation
- B. Termination through forced transfer
- C. Termination due to an unwanted major change in job responsibilities
- D. Termination due to a breach of the employment contract

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Canadian employment law, "just cause" is the legal standard that an employer must meet to terminate an employee without providing notice or severance pay. Termination for just cause occurs when an employee fundamentally breaches the core obligations of their employment contract. This breach must be severe enough to irreparably destroy the employment relationship and the trust between the employer and the employee. Examples of just cause include severe insubordination, theft, chronic absenteeism after warnings, egregious violations of safety protocols, or gross professional incompetence. It places the fault entirely on the employee's misconduct or failure to perform. Options A, B, and D describe situations related to "constructive dismissal" (where the employer breaches the contract by unilaterally changing terms or forcing a resignation), which legally entitles the employee to severance. Only a severe breach of the employment contract by the employee justifies a strict "just cause" dismissal.

NEW QUESTION # 80

While doing some research, a regulated member of ASET discovers two similar source documents authored by different professionals within the organization. A member of ASET published the later report and appears to have reproduced significant content from the older report and presented it as original work. Which of the following is the first step the member should take in this situation?

- A. Contact the member who authored the second report to discuss the similarities.
- B. Notify the department manager that the member copied the earlier report.
- C. Contact the author of the original report to discuss the similarities.
- D. Report the member to ASET for unethical conduct in copying the earlier report.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Plagiarism-presenting another professional's work, data, or intellectual property as one's own without proper attribution-is a severe violation of professional integrity and the ASET Code of Ethics.

However, professional courtesy and ethical due process dictate how such discoveries should be handled.

Before escalating the issue to management or filing a formal complaint with ASET, the observing member must ascertain the facts. It is possible (though perhaps unlikely) that there is a legitimate explanation, such as a co-authorship agreement, an administrative error in publishing, or an internal template policy. The correct first step is to approach the individual who authored the second (suspected plagiarized) report directly and privately to discuss the similarities. This professional confrontation gives the individual an opportunity to explain the situation or voluntarily correct the ethical breach by issuing a retraction or proper citation. If the author becomes defensive, denies obvious plagiarism, or refuses to correct the issue, the observing member must then escalate the matter to management or ASET.
