CompTIA Data+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q307-Q312):

NEW QUESTION # 307

An analyst is creating a resource to improve users' experience when they select specific records based on particular dates. Which of the following should the analyst use to create a resource that best meets user needs?

- A. ext field
- B. Frequency
- C. Drop-down menu
- D. Date range

Answer: C

Explanation:

A drop-down menu is a graphical user interface element that allows users to select one option from a list of options that are hidden until the user clicks on the menu. A drop-down menu can be used to create a resource that best meets user needs when they select specific records based on particular dates, because:

A drop-down menu can provide a predefined list of dates or date ranges that are relevant and valid for the records, such as today, yesterday, last week, last month, custom range, etc. This can help users to avoid typing errors or invalid dates in a text field, and to save time and effort in entering the dates.

A drop-down menu can also provide a calendar or a date picker that allows users to select a specific date or a range of dates from a graphical representation of a calendar. This can help users to visualize and compare the dates, and to easily adjust or modify their selection.

A drop-down menu can improve the user experience by making the interface more compact and organized, as it only shows one option at a time and hides the rest of the options until the user clicks on the menu. This can help users to focus on their selection and to avoid clutter and distraction.

NEW QUESTION # 308

Given the table below:

		Conclusion from statistical analysis
		Accept null	Reject null
True state of nature	Null hypothesis is true	1	2
	Null hypothesis is false	3	4

Which of the following boxes indicates that a Type II error has occurred?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Type II error is a false negative conclusion, which means failing to reject a null hypothesis that is actually false. In the table, box 3 indicates that a Type II error has occurred, because it shows that the null hypothesis is accepted when it is false in reality. This means that the statistical test failed to detect a significant difference or relationship that actually exists. NEW QUESTION # 309

Analyzing a data point, you find that the point is 1 standard deviation above the mean.

What is the z-score for this data point?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 0.5
- D. -0.5

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 310

A business unit made the following modification to the values in a table:

Previous value	New value
56.0	56.0456

Which of the following data quality dimensions was applied in this scenario?

- A. Integrity
- B. Completeness
- C. Consistency
- D. Accuracy

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 311

Which of the following data cleansing issues will be fixed when a DISTINCT function is applied?

- A. Missing data
- B. Redundant data
- C. Invalid data
- D. Duplicate data

Answer: D

Explanation:

This is because duplicate data refers to data that is repeated or copied in a data set, which can affect the quality and validity of the analysis. A DISTINCT function is a type of function that removes duplicate values from a column or a table, leaving only unique values. For example, a DISTINCT function in SQL that can achieve this is:

```
SELECT DISTINCT column_name FROM table_name;
```

The other data cleansing issues will not be fixed by applying a DISTINCT function. Here is why:

Missing data refers to data that is absent or incomplete in a data set, which can affect the accuracy and reliability of the analysis. A DISTINCT function does not help with missing data, because it does not fill in or impute the missing values.

Redundant data refers to data that is unnecessary or irrelevant for the analysis, which can affect the efficiency and performance of the analysis. A DISTINCT function does not help with redundant data, because it does not remove or filter out the redundant values.

Invalid data refers to data that is incorrect or inaccurate in a data set, which can affect the validity and reliability of the analysis. A DISTINCT function does not help with invalid data, because it does not validate or correct the invalid values.
