ATLASSIAN Jira Cloud Administrator Sample Questions (Q23-Q28):

NEW QUESTION # 23

Billie needs to perform various restricted tasks in the system. You must decide whether to grant her site admin or organization admin privileges.

Identify two reasons why you must make her an organization admin (Choose two)

- A. Billie needs to enable other users to be site or product admins
- B. Billie needs to log in as other users for troubleshooting user accounts
- C. Billie needs to enable other users to be organization admins

- D. Billie needs to remove users from the site
- E. Billie needs to make changes to user's profiles

Answer: B,E

NEW QUESTION # 24

You are the project administrator in a team-managed project and a company-managed project. You have no other administrative privileges. Identify the action you definitely cannot perform in a company-managed project.

- A. Create automation rules.
- B. Restrict who can use workflow transitions.
- C. Restrict who can see certain issues.
- D. Manage project access.
- E. Manage notifications and recipients.

Answer: B

Explanation:

As a project administrator in a company-managed project with no other administrative privileges (e.g., Jira admin or system admin), your permissions are limited to specific project-level settings defined by the permission scheme and other configurations. The action you definitely cannot perform in a company-managed project is restrict who can use workflow transitions (Option B), as this requires editing the workflow, which is a Jira admin privilege.

* Explanation of the Correct Answer (Option B):

* Restricting who can use workflow transitions involves adding conditions to transitions in a workflow (e.g., restricting a transition to specific users, roles, or groups). In company-managed projects, workflows are managed at the system level, and editing them requires Jira admin permissions. Project admins cannot modify workflows or their conditions.

* Exact Extract from Documentation:

Edit workflows in company-managed projects

Workflows define the statuses and transitions for issues in a project. To edit a workflow (e.g., add conditions, validators, or post functions):

* Go to Settings > Issues > Workflows.

* Select the workflow and make changes. Note: Only Jira administrators can edit workflows.

Project administrators can view the workflow in Project settings > Workflows but cannot modify it. To restrict transitions, add conditions like "Only users in a specific role" or

"Only the assignee." (Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure advanced work item workflows")

* Why This Fits: As a project admin in a company-managed project, you lack the permission to edit workflows, including adding conditions to restrict who can use transitions. This makes Option B the action you definitely cannot perform.

* Why Other Options Are Incorrect:

* Restrict who can see certain issues (Option A):

* Project admins in company-managed projects can restrict who can see issues by configuring issue security levels (if an issue security scheme is assigned to the project). They can manage security levels in Project settings > Issue security and assign users, roles, or groups to specific levels.

* Extract from Documentation:

Configure issue security

Issue security levels restrict who can view issues. Project administrators can manage security levels in Project settings > Issue security, provided an issue security scheme is assigned to the project.

(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure issue security schemes")

* Manage project access (Option C):

* Project admins can manage project access by adding or removing users, groups, or roles in Project settings > People. This controls who has access to the project based on the permission scheme's Browse Projects permission.

* Extract from Documentation:

Manage project access

Project administrators can add or remove users, groups, or roles in Project settings > People to control project access, as defined by the permission scheme.

(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Manage project permissions")

* Manage notifications and recipients (Option D):

* Project admins can manage notifications by configuring the notification scheme in Project settings > Notifications (if permitted by the permission scheme). They can add or remove recipients for events, such as users, roles, or groups.

* Extract from Documentation:

Configure notifications

Project administrators can edit the notification scheme in Project settings > Notifications to define who receives notifications for specific events, provided they have the Administer Projects permission.

(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure notification schemes")

- * Create automation rules (Option E):

- * Project admins can create project-level automation rules in company-managed projects using Project settings > Automation. These rules are limited to the project and do not require Jira admin permissions.

- * Extract from Documentation:

Create automation rules

Project administrators can create automation rules in Project settings > Automation to automate tasks within their project. Global automation rules require Jira admin permissions, but project-level rules do not.

(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Automate your Jira Cloud instance")

- * Additional Notes:

- * In team-managed projects, project admins have broader control, including the ability to configure workflows and restrict transitions, as workflows are project-specific. However, the question specifies a company-managed project, where workflow management is restricted to Jira admins.

- * The Administer Projects permission (granted to project admins) allows managing most project settings, but workflow editing is a system-level task requiring higher privileges.
