It also provides a competitive advantage in the job market, as employers increasingly seek out candidates with privacy management expertise.

IAPP Certified Information Privacy Manager (CIPM) Sample Questions (Q43-Q48):

NEW QUESTION # 43

(All of the following are the responsibilities of the privacy professional EXCEPT?)

- A. Defining the organization's data strategy.
- B. Conducting privacy impact assessments (PIA).
- C. Ensuring privacy audits are regularly conducted.
- D. Monitoring compliance with data protection laws and regulations.

Answer: A

Explanation:

CIPM defines the privacy professional's responsibilities as oversight of compliance, risk management, PIAs, and audits. Defining the organization's data strategy is a business and executive leadership responsibility, not a privacy management function.

NEW QUESTION # 44

When conducting due diligence during an acquisition, what should a privacy professional avoid?

- A. Benchmarking the two Companies privacy policies against one another.
- B. Allowing legal in both companies to handle the privacy laws and compliance.
- C. Discussing with the acquired company the type and scope of their data processing.
- D. Planning for impacts on the data processing operations post-acquisition.

Answer: B

Explanation:

When conducting due diligence during an acquisition, a privacy professional should avoid allowing legal in both companies to handle the privacy laws and compliance. This is because legal teams may not have the expertise or the resources to address all the privacy issues and risks that may arise from the acquisition. A privacy professional should be involved in the due diligence process to ensure that the privacy policies, practices, and obligations of both companies are aligned and compliant with the applicable laws and regulations. The other options are not things that a privacy professional should avoid, but rather things that they should do as part of the due diligence process. NEW QUESTION # 45

What should a privacy professional keep in mind when selecting which metrics to collect?

- A. Metrics should reveal strategies for increasing company earnings.
- B. The number of metrics should be limited at first.
- C. Metrics should be reported to the public.
- D. A variety of metrics should be collected before determining their specific functions.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A privacy professional should keep in mind that the number of metrics should be limited at first when selecting which metrics to collect. Metrics are quantitative measures that help evaluate the performance and effectiveness of a privacy program. However, collecting too many metrics can be overwhelming, confusing, and costly. Therefore, a privacy professional should start with a few key metrics that are relevant, meaningful, actionable, and aligned with the organization's privacy goals and priorities. These metrics can be refined and expanded over time as the privacy program matures and evolves. Reference: [Privacy Metrics], [Measuring Privacy Program Effectiveness]

NEW QUESTION # 46

SCENARIO

Please use the following to answer the next QUESTION:

As they company's new chief executive officer, Thomas Goddard wants to be known as a leader in data protection. Goddard recently served as the chief financial officer of Hoopy.com, a pioneer in online video viewing with millions of users around the world. Unfortunately, Hoopy is infamous within privacy protection circles for its ethically questionable practices, including unauthorized sales of personal data to marketers. Hoopy also was the target of credit card data theft that made headlines around the world, as at least two million credit card numbers were thought to have been pilfered despite the company's claims that "appropriate" data protection safeguards were in place. The scandal affected the company's business as competitors were quick to market an increased level of protection while offering similar entertainment and media content. Within three weeks after the scandal broke, Hoopy founder and CEO Maxwell Martin, Goddard's mentor, was forced to step down.

Goddard, however, seems to have landed on his feet, securing the CEO position at your company, Medialite, which is just emerging from its start-up phase. He sold the company's board and investors on his vision of Medialite building its brand partly on the basis of industry-leading data protection standards and procedures. He may have been a key part of a lapsed or even rogue organization in matters of privacy but now he claims to be reformed and a true believer in privacy protection. In his first week on the job, he calls you into his office and explains that your primary work responsibility is to bring his vision for privacy to life. But you also detect some reservations. "We want Medialite to have absolutely the highest standards," he says. "In fact, I want us to be able to say that we are the clear industry leader in privacy and data protection. However, I also need to be a responsible steward of the company's finances. So, while I want the best solutions across the board, they also need to be cost effective." You are told to report back in a week's time with your recommendations. Charged with this ambiguous mission, you depart the executive suite, already considering your next steps.

What metric can Goddard use to assess whether costs associated with implementing new privacy protections are justified?

- A. Compliance ratio
- B. Return on investment
- C. Implementation measure
- D. Cost-effective mean

Answer: B
