Microsoft GitHub Advanced Security Sample Questions (Q46-Q51):

NEW QUESTION # 46

What does code scanning do?

- A. It scans your entire Git history on branches present in your GitHub repository for any secrets
- B. It analyzes a GitHub repository to find security vulnerabilities
- C. It prevents code pushes with vulnerabilities as a pre-receive hook
- D. It contacts maintainers to ask them to create security advisories if a vulnerability is found

Answer: B

Explanation:

Code scanning is a static analysis feature that examines your source code to identify security vulnerabilities and coding errors. It runs either on every push, pull request, or a scheduled time depending on the workflow configuration.

It does not automatically contact maintainers, scan full Git history, or block pushes unless explicitly configured to do so.

NEW QUESTION # 47

You are managing code scanning alerts for your repository. You receive an alert highlighting a problem with data flow. What do you click for additional context on the alert?

- A. Show paths
- B. Code scanning alerts
- C. Security

Answer: A

Explanation:

When dealing with a data flow issue in a code scanning alert, clicking on "Show paths" provides a detailed view of the data's journey through the code. This includes the source of the data, the path it takes, and where it ends up (the sink). This information is crucial for understanding how untrusted data might reach sensitive parts of your application and helps in identifying where to implement proper validation or sanitization.

NEW QUESTION # 48

Which of the following is the best way to prevent developers from adding secrets to the repository?

- A. Create a CODEOWNERS file
- B. Make the repository public
- C. Enable push protection
- D. Configure a security manager

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best proactive control is push protection. It scans for secrets during a git push and blocks the commit before it enters the repository.

Other options (like CODEOWNERS or security managers) help with oversight but do not prevent secret leaks.

Making a repo public would increase the risk, not reduce it.

NEW QUESTION # 49

Which of the following is the most complete method for Dependabot to find vulnerabilities in third-party dependencies?

- A. CodeQL analyzes the code and raises vulnerabilities in third-party dependencies
- B. Dependabot reviews manifest files in the repository
- C. The build tool finds the vulnerable dependencies and calls the Dependabot API
- D. A dependency graph is created, and Dependabot compares the graph to the GitHub Advisory database

Answer: D

Explanation:

Dependabot builds a dependency graph by analyzing package manifests and lockfiles in your repository. This graph includes both direct and transitive dependencies. It then compares this graph against the GitHub Advisory Database, which includes curated, security-reviewed advisories.

This method provides a comprehensive and automated way to discover all known vulnerabilities across your dependency tree.

NEW QUESTION # 50

Which of the following options are code scanning application programming interface (API) endpoints? (Each answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)

- A. Get a single code scanning alert
- B. Modify the severity of an open code scanning alert
- C. Delete all open code scanning alerts
- D. List all open code scanning alerts for the default branch

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

The GitHub Code Scanning API includes endpoints that allow you to:

List alerts for a repository (filtered by branch, state, or tool) - useful for monitoring security over time.

Get a single alert by its ID to inspect its metadata, status, and locations in the code.

However, GitHub does not support modifying the severity of alerts via API - severity is defined by the scanning tool (e.g., CodeQL). Likewise, alerts cannot be deleted via the API; they are resolved by fixing the code or dismissing them manually.
