(Multi-select) You queried PPPoE simulation results on the MDU side as shown below. From the query results, it can be judged that:

(Note: the actual simulation output is not included in the prompt.)

- A. A, B, C On Huawei devices, PPPoE diagnostic/simulation tools verify the end-to-end PPPoE procedure (Discovery and Session), and-when credentials are supplied-authentication (PAP/CHAP) as well: Successful PADI/PADO/PADR/PADS exchange confirms Layer-2 reachability to the BRAS (option C). A successful session establishment and authentication indicate that the service configuration for PPPoE users is correct and the username/password & auth method are valid (options A and B).The MDU management IP (option D) is unrelated to the PPPoE access simulation itself; PPPoE runs over the subscriber VLAN/port/uplink toward BRAS, not via the MDU's management plane, so simulation success does not prove the management IP configuration.These behaviors align with Huawei's PPPoE diagnostic/monitoring command descriptions that detail session status, discovery phases, and authentication verification for fault location
- B. The service configuration of PPPoE users is normal

- C. The PPPoE user account and authentication method are correct
- D. The link between the MDU uplink and the BRAS is OK
- E. The MDU management IP is configured correctly
