Appian Associate Developer Sample Questions (Q103-Q108):

NEW QUESTION # 103

Which types of objects can be called using the "rule! domain " prefix?

- A. Decisions, expression rules, interfaces, and integrations
- B. Connected systems, records, expression rules, and interfaces
- C. Process models, integrations, expression rules, and constants

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 104

You need to quickly view the structure of an application, its packages, and supporting documentation. Which Appian Designer view should you use?

- A. Deploy
- B. Explore
- C. Monitor

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 105

You are configuring an employee onboarding User Input Task that will be assigned to the human resources group. Based on the default behavior for task assignments, which statement is valid?

- A. One user in the group can accept the task for themselves and complete it.
- B. For each user in the group, a task is generated and assigned to them to complete.
- C. Multiple users can accept the task at the same time up until the point that the first user completes it.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Based on the default behavior for task assignments in Appian, when a User Input Task is assigned to a group, any one member of the group can accept the task. Once accepted, the task becomes locked to that user, and they are responsible for completing it. This prevents multiple users from working on the same task simultaneously and ensures clear accountability.

NEW QUESTION # 106

You have a Custom Data Type (CDT), ABC_book, with a constant that refers to its data store entity, ABC_DSE_BOOK. You need to write a query filter for all ABC_book items whose title contains "Guide". Which code snippet accomplishes this goal?

- A.

```
a!queryFilter(
  field: "title",
  operator: "in",
  value: "Guide"
)
```
- B.

```
a!queryFilter(
  field: "title",
  operator: "in",
  value: "Guide"
)
```
- C.

a!queryFilter(
  field: recordType!ABC_BOOK.fields.title,
  operator: "=",
  value: "Guide"
)
```

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 107

You are creating a new interface object to display a pie chart.

The data for the chart is stored in a local variable in the parent interface object which references your child interface.

In terms of performance, what is the most efficient method to access the data required for the pie chart?

- A. Query the data separately in the child interface to avoid passing it from the parent interface.
- B. Create a rule input on the child interface and pass the local variable data from the parent interface.
- C. Reference the local variable directly from the child Interface using a process report.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The most efficient method to access data for a pie chart in a child interface is to create a rule input on the child interface and pass the local variable data from the parent interface. This method avoids redundant data queries and takes advantage of Appian's pass-by-reference mechanism, which does not duplicate data in memory when passing it to the child interface.
