Splunk IT Service Intelligence Certified Admin Sample Questions (Q98-Q103):

NEW QUESTION # 98

Which of the following is a good use case regarding defining entities for a service?

- A. All of the entities have the same identifying field name.
- B. Being able to split a CPU usage KPI by host name.
- C. KPI total values are aggregated from multiple different category values in the source events.
- D. Automatically associate entities to services using multiple entity aliases.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Define entities before creating services. When you configure a service, you can specify entity matching rules based on entity aliases that automatically add the entities to your service.

Reference:

A is the correct answer because defining entities for a service allows you to automatically associate entities to services using multiple entity aliases. Entity aliases are alternative names or identifiers for an entity, such as host name, IP address, MAC address, or DNS name. ITSI matches entity aliases to fields in your data sources and assigns entities to services accordingly. This way, you can avoid manually adding entities to each service and ensure that your services reflect the latest changes in your environment. Reference:

NEW QUESTION # 99

Which deep dive swim lane type does not require writing SPL?

- A. KPI lane.
- B. Event lane.
- C. Metric lane.
- D. Automatic lane.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

Among all the search configurations, automatic lane doesn't need to be written in Splunk Processing language.

NEW QUESTION # 100

Which of the following is a problem requiring correction in ITSI?

- A. Two or more entities with the same entity key value in any info field.
- B. Two or more entities with the same entity ID.
- C. Two or more entities with the same value in a single alias field.
- D. Two or more entities with the same service ID.

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Splunk IT Service Intelligence (ITSI), entities represent infrastructure components, applications, or other elements that are monitored. Each entity is uniquely identified by its entity ID, and entities can be associated with one or more services through the concept of aliases. A problem arises when two or more entities have the same value in a single alias field because aliases are used to match events to entities in ITSI. If multiple entities share the same alias value, ITSI might incorrectly associate data with the wrong entity, leading to inaccurate monitoring and analytics. This scenario requires correction to ensure that each alias uniquely identifies a single entity, thereby maintaining the integrity of the monitoring and analysis process within ITSI.

The uniqueness of service IDs, entity IDs, and entity key values in info fields is also important but does not typically present the same level of issue as duplicate values in an alias field.

NEW QUESTION # 101

Where are KPI search results stored?

- A. Output to a CSV lookup.
- B. The itsi_summary index.
- C. KV Store.
- D. The default index.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Search results are processed, created, and written to the itsi_summary index via an alert action.

Reference:

D is the correct answer because KPI search results are stored in the itsi_summary index in ITSI. This index is an events index that stores the results of scheduled KPI searches. Summary indexing lets you run fast searches over large data sets by spreading out the cost of a computationally expensive report over time. Reference: Overview of ITSI indexes

NEW QUESTION # 102

When working with a notable event group in the Notable Events Review dashboard, which of the following can be set at the individual or group level?

- A. Severity, comments, service.
- B. Severity, status, owner.
- C. Service, status, owner.
- D. Severity, status, service.

Answer: B

Explanation:

In the Notable Events Review dashboard within Splunk IT Service Intelligence (ITSI), when working with a notable event group, users can set or adjust certain attributes at the individual event level or at the group level. These attributes include:

Severity: The importance or impact level of the notable event or group, which can be adjusted to reflect the current assessment of the situation.

Status: The current state of the notable event or group, such as "New," "In Progress," or "Resolved," indicating the progress in addressing the event or group.
