ASET Ethics Examination-ASET Professional Practice Exam (PPE) Sample Questions (Q101-Q106):

NEW QUESTION # 101

A regulated member receives tickets to a sports event from a client who is bidding on a project for the member's organization. The client assures the member that the tickets are a gift for their long-standing relationship and are not related to the current bidding process. Which of the following actions should the member take?

- A. Accept the tickets.
- B. Speak with the employer before deciding whether to accept or return the tickets.
- C. Report the client's actions to ASET.
- D. Return the tickets.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The ASET Code of Ethics requires members to act with absolute integrity and to avoid any situations that create a conflict of interest, whether actual or perceived. In the context of procurement and contract bidding, maintaining strict objectivity is critical. Accepting a gift of significant value (like sports tickets) from an active bidder completely compromises that objectivity. Even if the client insists the gift is purely for a "long-standing relationship" and the member believes they will not be influenced, the perception of bias to other bidders, the employer, and the public is highly damaging. It creates an appearance of bribery or favoritism. The ethical obligation here is clear and immediate: the member must politely but firmly return the tickets, citing their professional ethical obligations and corporate procurement policies regarding active bidding periods. Speaking with the employer (Option D) is unnecessary as the ethical standard prohibits acceptance regardless of corporate leniency, and reporting to ASET (Option C) is generally an overreaction unless it was an explicit, aggressive bribe.

NEW QUESTION # 102

Which of the following statements about Continuing Professional Development (CPD) programs is true?

- A. Associations should have a mandatory program of CPD activities.
- B. Associations should have a voluntary program of CPD activities.
- C. Associations should conduct a practice review of a large sample of members.
- D. There is no need to report and record CPD activities.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The fundamental justification for the existence of professional regulatory bodies like ASET is the protection of the public. Because technology, codes, safety standards, and engineering practices evolve at a rapid pace, a professional's knowledge can quickly become obsolete. An obsolete professional is an incompetent professional, and an incompetent professional poses a severe risk to public safety.

Therefore, a purely "voluntary" CPD program (Option B) is insufficient, as it allows complacent individuals to fall behind. To fulfill their statutory mandate, professional associations must implement a mandatory program of CPD activities (Option C). This requirement ensures that every single regulated member actively maintains, upgrades, and broadens their technical and ethical competency throughout their entire career. Compliance must be tracked, reported, and audited (contradicting Option A) to ensure that the public can continually trust the protected designations (like C.Tech. and C.E.T.) to represent current, safe, and effective professional practice.

NEW QUESTION # 103

While doing some research, a regulated member of ASET discovers two similar source documents authored by different professionals within the organization. A member of ASET published the later report and appears to have reproduced significant content from the older report and presented it as original work. Which of the following is the first step the member should take in this situation?

- A. Contact the member who authored the second report to discuss the similarities.
- B. Notify the department manager that the member copied the earlier report.
- C. Report the member to ASET for unethical conduct in copying the earlier report.
- D. Contact the author of the original report to discuss the similarities.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Plagiarism-presenting another professional's work, data, or intellectual property as one's own without proper attribution-is a severe violation of professional integrity and the ASET Code of Ethics.

However, professional courtesy and ethical due process dictate how such discoveries should be handled.

Before escalating the issue to management or filing a formal complaint with ASET, the observing member must ascertain the facts. It is possible (though perhaps unlikely) that there is a legitimate explanation, such as a co-authorship agreement, an administrative error in publishing, or an internal template policy. The correct first step is to approach the individual who authored the second (suspected plagiarized) report directly and privately to discuss the similarities. This professional confrontation gives the individual an opportunity to explain the situation or voluntarily correct the ethical breach by issuing a retraction or proper citation. If the author becomes defensive, denies obvious plagiarism, or refuses to correct the issue, the observing member must then escalate the matter to management or ASET.

NEW QUESTION # 104

Which of the following is the main federal law regulating the environment in Canada?

- A. The Canadian Environmental Management Act
- B. The Canadian Environmental Bill of Rights Act
- C. The Canadian Environmental Assessment Act
- D. The Canadian Environmental Protection Act

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Canada, environmental regulation is a shared responsibility between federal, provincial, and municipal governments. However, the primary piece of federal legislation concerning environmental protection is the Canadian Environmental Protection Act, 1999 (CEPA). CEPA is a comprehensive legal framework aimed at preventing pollution and protecting the environment and human health. It provides the federal government with the authority to assess and manage the risks posed by toxic substances, regulate emissions and effluents from federal works and undertakings, govern the disposal of waste at sea, and control the import/export of hazardous wastes. ASET professionals, particularly those working in chemical, environmental, or civil disciplines, must be intimately familiar with CEPA regulations to ensure their designs, projects, and waste management protocols do not violate federal law. Failing to adhere to CEPA can result in severe legal penalties for both the professional and the employer, as well as catastrophic harm to the public and the ecosystem.

NEW QUESTION # 105

A regulated member is concerned that a supervisor is providing incorrect instructions to employees regarding the operation of equipment. Which of the following should be the member's first course of action?

- A. Discuss the concerns with the supervisor directly.
- B. Retrain the employees in the correct use of the equipment.
- C. Report the supervisor to ASET.
- D. Report the supervisor to upper management.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In a professional workplace, maintaining safety and technical accuracy is paramount, but so is respecting the organizational chain of command and acting with professional courtesy. If a regulated member witnesses a supervisor providing incorrect equipment instructions, jumping immediately to upper management or an external regulatory body like ASET is considered unprofessional escalation.

Furthermore, undermining the supervisor by quietly retraining the employees behind their back creates workplace conflict and confusion. Assuming the situation does not present an immediate, life-threatening emergency, the most ethical and effective first course of action is to approach the supervisor directly and privately to discuss the concerns. The supervisor may have simply made a verbal mistake, misunderstood the manual, or been operating on outdated information. By bringing the technical discrepancy directly to the supervisor's attention, the member provides them the opportunity to realize the error, maintain their authority, and correct the instructions themselves, fostering a collaborative and safe work environment.
