NEW QUESTION # 416

If Block A, on which the lever is resting, is moved farther away from Block B

- A. it will be easier to lift Block B and it will go higher.
- B. it will be harder to lift Block B and it will not be lifted to the same height.
- C. it will be harder to lift Block B but it will go higher.
- D. it will be easier to lift Block B but it will not be lifted as high.

Answer: C

Explanation:

It will be harder to lift Block B but it will go higher. If Block A under the beam serving as the lever is moved away from Block B on top of the lever beam, the moment for the force exerted will increase, since the fulcrum is now closer to the force; this will make Block B harder to lift. However, the height to which Block B on the end of the lever beam can be raised increases the further away Block A is moved from Block B.

NEW QUESTION # 419

As a member of FEMA, you're required to set up a contingency plan to supply meals to residents of a town devastated by a tornado. A breakfast ration weighs 12 ounces and the lunch and dinner rations weigh 18 ounces each. Assuming a food truck can carry 3 tons and that each resident will receive 3 meals per day, how many residents can you feed from one truck during a 10-day period?

- A. 250 residents
- B. 300 residents
- C. 200 residents
- D. 150 residents

Answer: C

Explanation:

One ton = 2,000 pounds, so one truck can carry 6,000 pounds. There are 16 ounces in a pound, so one truck can carry 96,000 ounces. The total daily ration for each resident is 12 ounces + 18 ounces + 18 ounces, or 48 ounces. The number of daily rations supplied can be expressed as $96,000 \div 48 = 2,000$.

Dividing 2,000 by 10 days results in 200 residents who can be fed by one truck during this 10-day period.
