NEW QUESTION # 176

Company F applies a target pricing and costing approach. The following information about costs and revenues of Company F's product are available for the year just ended:

Unit sales	60,000
Unit selling price	US $400
Cost of goods sold	US $13,200,000
Value-chain operating costs excluding production	US $7,920,000

Company F plans to increase unit sales to 80,000 by reducing the product's unit price to US $320. If Company F desires a unit target operating income of 12%, by what amount must it reduce the full cost per unit?

- A. US $38.40
- B. US $70.40
- C. US $32.00
- D. US $80.00

Answer: B

Explanation:

Unit target operating income is $\text{US } $38.40$ ($12\% \times $320$ unit target price). Hence, the unit target full cost is $\text{US } $281.60$ ($$320 - \38.40). The current full cost per unit is $\text{US } $352.00$ $[($13,200,000 \text{ CGS} + $7,920,000 \text{ other value chain operating costs}) - 60,000 \text{ units sold}]$, so the necessary reduction in the full cost per unit is $\text{US } $70.40$ ($$352.00 - \281.60).

Which of the following is an example of an application control?

- A. User testing of system changes.
- B. Formatted data fields.
- C. System data backup process.
- D. Automated password change requirements.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation:

Application controls are specific to software applications and help ensure data integrity and accuracy within systems.

Option A (Automated password change requirements) - A system security control, not specific to a single application.

Option B (System data backup) - A general IT control, not an application control.

Option C (User testing of system changes) - Part of software development controls, not an application-level control.

Formatted data fields ensure that users enter information in the correct format, preventing errors and improving data accuracy.

Since formatted data fields are an application-specific control, Option D is correct.
