NEW QUESTION # 108

Which drawing represents a Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP)? Please click anywhere on the correct image.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

The image in the bottom right represents a Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP).

A Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP) is a drawing that shows the layout of the ceiling as if it were reflected onto a mirror on the floor. It typically includes details like lighting fixtures, HVAC diffusers, sprinkler heads, and ceiling-mounted AV equipment. In this image, the bottom-right drawing displays these elements, with symbols for speakers, lights, diffusers, and other ceiling-mounted devices, which are characteristic of an RCP.

RCPs are essential in AV installations as they allow AV professionals to plan the placement of ceiling-mounted components, ensuring proper coverage and aesthetics within a room. Other drawings, such as those in the top left and bottom left, depict elevations and floor plans, which do not include ceiling-specific information. The top right diagram is a side view detail, possibly of a projector mount, rather than a ceiling layout.
