- B. To store hourly baselines reports for every hour of the day during weekdays and weekends
- C. To store data for specific baselines during the weekend, if there is a spike in network activity
- D. To store data for specific baselines during peak business hours of weekdays

Answer: A

Explanation:

In FortiSIEM baselining, an hourly bucket is used to maintain hourly-specific statistical baselines. This helps detect anomalies by comparing current activity against historical norms for each hour of the day, separately for weekdays and weekends.
