NEW QUESTION # 42
Which of the following BEST describes the purpose of a change strategy?

- A. Achieving the transition between current state and future state.
- B. Ensuring the simplest way for transition.
- C. Mapping the alternative options.
- D. Ensuring the quickest way for transition.

Answer: A

Explanation:
A change strategy outlines how an organization will move from its current state to its desired future state. Its purpose is to ensure a structured and effective transition.
Key Considerations:
Ensuring the simplest way for transition: While simplicity is desirable, it is not the primary purpose of a change strategy.
Ensuring the quickest way for transition: Speed is not the main focus; effectiveness and alignment with goals are more important.
Achieving the transition between current state and future state: This accurately describes the purpose of a change strategy, which is to bridge the gap between where the organization is now and where it wants to be.
Mapping the alternative options: While mapping options may be part of the planning process, it is not the ultimate purpose of the change strategy.
Evaluation of Each Option:
A . Ensuring the simplest way for transition:
Simplicity is a consideration but not the primary purpose of a change strategy.
Conclusion: This is not correct .
B . Ensuring the quickest way for transition:
Speed is secondary to achieving an effective and sustainable transition.
Conclusion: This is not correct .
C . Achieving the transition between current state and future state:
This is the core purpose of a change strategy, ensuring the organization moves effectively toward its goals.
Conclusion: This is correct .
D . Mapping the alternative options:
Mapping options is part of the analysis phase, not the overarching purpose of the strategy.

Conclusion: This is not correct .
Final Recommendation:
The best description of the purpose of a change strategy is:
C . Achieving the transition between current state and future state.
