NEW QUESTION # 61
Referring to the exhibit, which role does Device A serve in an IP fabric?

- A. server

- B. spine
- C. super spine
- D. leaf

Answer: B

Explanation:
Device A serves as a spine in an IP fabric. An IP fabric is a network architecture that uses a spine-leaf topology to provide high performance, scalability, and reliability for data center networks. A spine- leaf topology consists of two layers of devices: spine devices and leaf devices.
Spine devices are the core devices that interconnect all the leaf devices using equal-cost multipath (ECMP) routing. Leaf devices are the edge devices that connect to the servers, storage, or other network devices. In the exhibit, Device A is connected to four leaf devices using multiple links, which indicates that it is a spine device.

NEW QUESTION # 62
Which statement is correct about making changes to a predefined device profile in Juniper Apstra?

- A. You must reboot the Apstra server after changes are made to a predefined device profile before they will become active.
- B. The processor load on the Apstra server will be negatively impacted when changes are made to a predefined device profile.
- C. The changes you make to a predefined device profile will be discarded and overwritten when upgrading the Apstra server version.
- D. Changing the predefined device profile will also affect deployed devices that use the same profile.

Answer: C

Explanation:
A predefined device profile is a configuration template that is shipped with Apstra software and supports most qualified Juniper devices. A predefined device profile cannot be changed, since any changes would be discarded and overwritten when you upgrade the Apstra server version. If you want to customize a predefined device profile, you can clone and edit it instead.

NEW QUESTION # 63
How does Apstra use Fabric Device Management to ensure consistency across the network?

- A. By randomly assigning system IDs to devices
- B. By adjusting the color-coding of cables in the data center
- C. By assigning different agents to devices based on their location
- D. By enforcing uniform configurations on all network devices

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 64
IBA probes analyze telemetry data from specified devices within a blueprint. Which component Identities devices that supply data tor a specific probe?

- A. processor
- B. search engine
- C. graph query
- D. data selector

Answer: C

Explanation:
A graph query is a component that identifies devices that supply data for a specific probe. A graph query is an expression that matches nodes in the Apstra graph database based on their attributes, such as device name, role, type, or tag. A graph query can be used to select the source devices for the input processors of a probe, as well as to filter the data by device attributes in the subsequent processors of a probe.

NEW QUESTION # 65
What are two system-defined user roles that are available in Juniper Apstra? (Choose two.)

- A. viewer
- B. authorized
- C. user
- D. root

Answer: A,C

Explanation:
Juniper Apstra provides four system-defined user roles that are available in the Apstra GUI environment. They are: administrator, device_ztp, viewer, and user. Based on the web search results, we can infer the following statements:
viewer: This role includes permissions to only view various elements in the Apstra system, such as blueprints, devices, design, resources, external systems, platform, and others. Users with this role cannot create, edit, or delete any element.
user: This role includes permissions to view and edit various elements in the Apstra system, such as blueprints, devices, design, resources, external systems, platform, and others. Users with this role cannot create or delete any element.
authorized: This is not a system-defined user role in Juniper Apstra. It is a term used to describe users who have been authenticated by an external system, such as LDAP, Active Directory, TACACS+, or RADIUS.
root: This is not a system-defined user role in Juniper Apstra. It is a term used to describe the superuser account on a Linux system, which has full access to all commands and files. Creating a user in the Apstra GUI does not provide that user access to the Apstra platform via SSH. To access the Apstra platform via SSH, you must create a local Linux system user.
