PRINCIPLE OF TEST CONSTRUCTION

I. INTRODUCTION

The fundamental principles involved in constructing good and effective tests, it explains two major qualities of a good test: Validity and Reliability. These principles ensure that a test accurately measures what it is supposed to measure and produces consistent results.

II. VALIDITY

- ✓ Validity refers to the degree to which a test measures what it claims to measure. A test is valid if it accurately assesses the knowledge, skills, or abilities it is intended to measure. Validity ensures that test results are meaningful and appropriate for their purpose.

Example:

- ✓ If a science test is intended to measure students' understanding of the scientific method but only asks students to memorize scientific facts, the test lacks validity. A valid science test would require students to apply the steps of the scientific method.

A. Types of Validity

1. Content Validity

- ✓ Content validity refers to how well a test covers all the important topics or learning objectives that were taught. A test has high content validity if its questions represent the entire lesson or curriculum.

Example:

- ✓ If students learned addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division of fractions, a test that includes all these topics has good content validity. If it only includes addition, the test lacks content validity.

2. Criterion-based Validity

- ✓ Criterion-based validity refers to how well a test compares with an external standard or criterion. It shows whether test scores can predict future performance or match results from another valid test.

Example:

- ✓ If scores from an aptitude test are closely related to students' performance in college, the test has high criterion-based validity. The National Achievement Test predicting senior high school performance is another example.

3. Construct Validity

- ✓ Construct validity refers to how well a test measures an abstract concept or construct, such as intelligence, critical thinking, or creativity. The test must be based on sound educational or psychological theories.

Example:

- ✓ A test designed to measure critical thinking should include questions that require analysis, reasoning, and evaluation. If the test only asks students to recall facts, it does not have construct validity.

NEW QUESTION # 487

An organization currently has a network with 55,000 unique Internet Protocol (IP) addresses in their private Internet Protocol version 4 (IPv4) network range and has acquired another organization and must integrate their 25,000 endpoints with the existing flat network topology.

If subnetting is not implemented, which network class is implied for the organization's resulting private network segment?

- A. B
- B. E
- C. C
- D. A

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 488

An organization donates used computer equipment to a non-profit group. A system administrator used a degausser on both the magnetic and Solid State Drives (SSD) before delivery. A volunteer at the non-profit group discovered some of the drives still contained readable data and alerted the system administrator. What is the BEST solution to ensure that computer equipment does not contain data before release?

- A. Determine the type of media in the computer and apply the appropriate method of sanitization.
- B. Verify sanitization results by trying to read 100% of the media.
- C. Use a program that will overwrite existing data with a fixed pattern of binary zeroes.
- D. Use cryptographic erasure to ensure data on the media device is erased.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 489

An information system containing Protected Health Information (PHI) will be accessed by doctors, nurses, and others working in a hospital. The same application will be used by staff in the pharmacy department only for dispensing prescribed medication. Additionally, patients can log in to view medical history. The system owner needs to propose an access control model that considers environment, situation, compliance, and security policies while dynamically granting the required level of access. Which access control model is the MOST suitable?

- A. Role-Based Access Control (RBAC)
- B. Risk-adaptive access control
- C. Task-based access control
- D. Attribute-Based Access Control (ABAC)

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 490

Increased use of third-party logistics (3PL) services is likely to have which of the following effects on a firm's balance sheet?

- A. Decreased retained earnings
- B. Decreased fixed assets

- C. Increased accounts receivable
- D. Increased intangible assets

Answer: B

Explanation:

Third-party logistics (3PL) services are external providers that handle various supply chain functions for a firm, such as transportation, warehousing, inventory management, and order fulfillment. By outsourcing these functions to a 3PL, a firm can reduce its investment in fixed assets, such as trucks, trailers, warehouses, and equipment. This can improve the firm's liquidity and return on assets ratios, as well as lower its depreciation and maintenance costs. However, using a 3PL does not necessarily affect the firm's retained earnings, accounts receivable, or intangible assets, which are influenced by other factors, such as profitability, sales, and goodwill.
