CSI Canadian Securities Course Exam2 Sample Questions (Q157-Q162):

NEW QUESTION # 157

What type of return is calculated for a security held for 18 months if no adjustments to the return are made?

- A. Holding period return.
- B. Nominal rate of return.
- C. Effective rate of return.
- D. Annualized total return.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The return on a security held for a specific period, such as 18 months, without adjusting for time or compounding, is referred to as the holding period return (HPR). This straightforward calculation assesses total returns over the period of ownership.

1. Definition of Holding Period Return:

The HPR is calculated as:

$$HPR = \frac{\text{Ending Value} - \text{Initial Value} + \text{Dividends Received}}{\text{Initial Value}}$$
 HPR = Initial Value (Ending Value - Initial Value) + Dividends Received This measure evaluates total growth, disregarding compounding or annualization.

2. Other Return Types (Incorrect Answers):

* Effective Rate of Return: Reflects annualized returns considering compounding within a year. It is not applicable to non-annualized periods like 18 months.

* Nominal Rate of Return: The unadjusted rate of return without accounting for inflation. While related, it does not specifically refer to the holding period concept.

* Annualized Total Return: This adjusts returns to reflect an annual basis, assuming constant performance throughout the period. It is unsuitable for raw, unadjusted returns like the HPR.

References from CSC Study Documents:

* Chapter 15, Volume 2: Covers the calculation of different return metrics, with detailed examples of HPR and its application.

* Portfolio Return Analysis in Section 15 explains the non-compounded nature of holding period calculations.

- A. There are arbitrage opportunities with the ETF price.
- B. A client sells on the exchange.

NEW QUESTION # 159

What is a characteristic of provincial savings bonds?

- A. Can be issued Internationally.
- B. Available only at a certain time
- C. Backed by provincial assets
- D. Mature every six months

Answer: B

Explanation:

Provincial savings bonds are available for purchase only during specific periods, often during annual campaigns. They are a secure investment option backed by the issuing provincial government and are available only to residents of the issuing province. They are not issued internationally and do not mature every six months.

NEW QUESTION # 160

Which macroeconomic factors would have a positive impact on investor expectations and the price of securities?

- A. Increased taxes on corporations with the goal of lower government debt.
- B. A decrease in government spending with corresponding tax cuts to individuals.
- C. Low levels of government debt and consumer indebtedness.
- D. Targeting certain sectors of the economy with monetary policy measures and tax breaks.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Low levels of government and consumer indebtedness create a positive macroeconomic environment for investor expectations and securities prices. When debt levels are manageable, governments and consumers have greater financial flexibility, which can lead to increased economic activity and improved investor confidence.

* Why This Impacts Investor Expectations Positively:

* Low government debt allows for expansionary fiscal policies (e.g., increased spending or tax cuts) without significantly increasing borrowing costs.

- * Low consumer debt supports higher disposable income, enabling more spending and investment.
  - * Both factors reduce the risk of higher interest rates, keeping borrowing costs low for businesses and individuals, which supports economic growth and, in turn, securities prices.
  - * Why Other Options Are Incorrect:
  - * A: Targeted monetary policies may benefit specific sectors but are not a universally positive factor for all securities.
  - * B: Increased taxes on corporations can reduce profitability and negatively impact investor expectations.
  - * D: A decrease in government spending with tax cuts could slow economic growth, negatively impacting securities prices.

NEW QUESTION # 161

Based on market capitalization, which sector of the S&P/TSX Composite index has one of the highest weightings within the index?

- A. Information technology
- B. Energy
- C. Utilities
- D. Health care

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Energy sector is one of the highest-weighted sectors in the S&P/TSX Composite Index based on market capitalization. This reflects Canada's resource-rich economy, where energy companies, including oil, gas, and related services, make up a significant portion of the market.

Other options:

- * Health care: A relatively small portion of the index.
- * Utilities: Have a smaller weight compared to energy.
- * Information technology: While growing, it has not surpassed energy in weight within the Canadian market.

References:

- * Volume 1, Chapter 8: Equity Securities, section on "Canadian Market Indexes" outlines the composition and sectoral weightings of the S&P/TSX Composite Index.
