CertNexus Certified Artificial Intelligence Practitioner (CAIP) Sample Questions (Q52-Q57):

NEW QUESTION # 52

Which of the following unsupervised learning models can a bank use for fraud detection?

- A. Hierarchical clustering
- B. Anomaly detection
- C. DBSCAN
- D. k-means

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Anomaly detection is an unsupervised learning technique that identifies outliers or abnormal patterns in data, which can be useful for fraud detection. Anomaly detection algorithms can learn the normal behavior of transactions and flag the ones that deviate significantly from the norm, indicating possible fraud.

NEW QUESTION # 53

Which of the following pieces of AI technology provides the ability to create fake videos?

- A. Support-vector machines (SVM)
- B. Long short-term memory (LSTM) networks
- C. Recurrent neural networks (RNN)
- D. Generative adversarial networks (GAN)

Answer: D

Explanation:

Generative adversarial networks (GAN) are a type of AI technology that can create fake videos, images, audio, or text that are realistic and indistinguishable from real ones. GAN consist of two neural networks: a generator and a discriminator. The generator tries to produce fake samples from random noise, while the discriminator tries to distinguish between real and fake samples. The two networks compete against each other in a game-like scenario, where the generator tries to fool the discriminator and the discriminator tries to catch the generator. Through this process, both networks improve their abilities until they reach an equilibrium where the generator can produce convincing fakes.

NEW QUESTION # 54

A big data architect needs to be cautious about personally identifiable information (PII) that may be captured with their new IoT system. What is the final stage of the Data Management Life Cycle, which the architect must complete in order to implement data privacy and security appropriately?

- A. Duplicate
- B. De-Duplicate
- C. Detain
- D. Destroy

Answer: D

Explanation:

The final stage of the data management life cycle is data destruction, which is the process of securely deleting or erasing data that is no longer needed or relevant for the organization. Data destruction ensures that data is disposed of in compliance with any legal or regulatory requirements, as well as any internal policies or standards. Data destruction also protects the organization from potential data breaches, leaks, or thefts that could compromise its privacy and security. Data destruction can be performed using various methods, such as overwriting, degaussing, shredding, or incinerating

NEW QUESTION # 55

Which of the following occurs when a data segment is collected in such a way that some members of the intended statistical population are less likely to be included than others?

- A. Stereotype bias
- B. Systematic value distortion

- C. Algorithmic bias
- D. Sampling bias

Answer: D

Explanation:

Sampling bias occurs when a data segment is collected in such a way that some members of the intended statistical population are less likely to be included than others. This can result in a sample that is not representative of the population and may lead to inaccurate or misleading conclusions. Sampling bias can be caused by various factors, such as non-random sampling methods, non-response, self-selection, or convenience sampling. NEW QUESTION # 56

When should the model be retrained in the ML pipeline?

- A. Concept drift is detected in the pipeline.
- B. Some outliers are detected in live data.
- C. A new monitoring component is added.
- D. More data become available for the training phase.

Answer: A

Explanation:

When concept drift is detected in the pipeline, it means that the model performance has degraded over time due to changes in the underlying data generating process. This requires retraining the model with new data that reflects the current situation and updating the model parameters accordingly.
