- A. Identification and analysis of unknown executables
- B. Next-Gen Antivirus (NGAV) protection
- C. Adware and Potentially Unwanted Program detection and prevention
- D. Real-time offline protection

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to documentation (documentation/detections/technique/sensor-based-ml-cst0007):

CrowdStrike sensor-based machine learning (ML) identifies and analyzes unknown executables as they run on hosts. This technique is triggered by files and file attributes associated with known malware. This is similar to the [Cloud- basedML] (/support/documentation/detections/technique/cloud-based-ml) technique. - C. Windows and Mac share Sensor Update policies. Linux requires its own set of policies based on the different kernel versions
- D. Sensor Update policies are not Operating System specific. One policy can be applied to all Operating Systems

Answer: B

The option that describes the relationship between Sensor Update policies and Operating Systems is that a Sensor Update policy must be configured for each Operating System (Windows, Mac, Linux). This option is essentially a repetition of question 141 and its answer.

Sensor Update policies are specific to each operating system type, as different operating systems have different sensor versions, features, and requirements. Therefore, you need to create and assign separate Sensor Update policies for each operating system type in your environment.
