NEW QUESTION # 202

Which of the following refers to a list of all hardware components installed on an endpoint system?

- A. Hardware inventory
- B. Configuration inventory
- C. Software inventory
- D. Firmware inventory

Answer: A

Explanation:

Hardware inventory refers to a comprehensive list of all hardware components installed on an endpoint system. This includes information about the CPU, memory, storage devices, network adapters, and any other hardware components.

NEW QUESTION # 203

What does Network Access Control (NAC) refer to in cybersecurity?

- A. To monitor network traffic for potential security threats
- B. To authenticate users before granting them access
- C. To filter network traffic based on predefined rules
- D. To encrypt traffic between two networks

Answer: B

Explanation:

Network Access Control (NAC) is a cybersecurity approach that focuses on ensuring that only authorized users and devices are granted access to a network. NAC systems typically involve authentication mechanisms, such as username and password combinations, digital certificates, or biometric authentication, to verify the identity of users before permitting network access. By implementing NAC, organizations can enforce access control policies, prevent unauthorized access, and mitigate security risks.

NEW QUESTION # 204

What does the term "ad hoc" mean in the context of cybersecurity?

- A. A method of threat detection through continuous monitoring and analysis.
- B. A security incident response plan that is predefined and well-documented.
- C. A temporary or improvised solution in response to a specific situation or problem.
- D. A security assessment conducted by external auditors.

Answer: C

Explanation:

In cybersecurity, "ad hoc" refers to a temporary or improvised solution that is implemented to address a specific cybersecurity situation or problem. It is often done in situations where there is no predefined process or security control in place. Ad hoc solutions may not be scalable or sustainable in the long run, but they can be useful in urgent or unexpected situations to mitigate threats or vulnerabilities temporarily.

NEW QUESTION # 205

Which of the following elements are part of cybersecurity incident response?

- A. Detection, Analysis, Containment, Eradication
- B. Prevention, Monitoring, Compliance, Remediation
- C. Assessment, Authorization, Authentication, Accounting
- D. Identification, Recovery, Mitigation, Restoration

Answer: A

Explanation:

Cybersecurity incident response involves several key elements, including detection, analysis, containment, and eradication. Detection refers to the identification and recognition of a potential cybersecurity incident. Analysis involves examining the incident to understand its nature, impact, and cause. Containment entails taking immediate action to minimize further damage and prevent the incident from spreading. Eradication involves completely removing the threat or vulnerability from the system or network in order to eliminate the possibility of a recurring incident. These elements are crucial for an effective incident response strategy.

NEW QUESTION # 206

Move each NIST Incident Response Lifecycle phase from the list on the left to the correct description on the right.

Note: You will receive partial credit for each correct answer.

The screenshot shows a drag-and-drop interface. On the left, under the heading "Phases in the Incident Response Lifecycle", there are four boxes: "Containment, Eradication, and Recovery", "Detection and Analysis", "Post-Incident Activity", and "Preparation". A yellow circle with a mouse cursor is positioned over the "Containment, Eradication, and Recovery" box. In the center, under the heading "Descriptions", there are four text blocks: "Mitigates the impact of the incident", "Reports the cause and cost of the incident and the steps to prevent future incidents", "Evaluates incident indicators to determine whether they are legitimate attacks and alerts the organization of the incidents", and "Establishes an incident response capability to ensure that organizational assets are sufficiently secure". On the right, there are four empty boxes, each labeled "Incident Response Phase".

Answer:

Explanation:

This screenshot shows the same interface as above, but with the correct matches highlighted in red. The "Containment, Eradication, and Recovery" box on the left is highlighted in green. The "Mitigates the impact of the incident" description in the center is highlighted in red. The "Incident Response Phase" box on the right that corresponds to this description is also highlighted in red. The other boxes and descriptions remain unhighlighted.
