CompTIA Advanced Security Practitioner (CASP+) Exam Sample Questions (Q521-Q526):

NEW QUESTION # 521

A company is implementing SSL inspection. During the next six months, multiple web applications that will be separated out with subdomains will be deployed.

Which of the following will allow the inspection of the data without multiple certificate deployments?

- A. Implement certificate pinning.
- B. Use a third-party CA.
- C. Include all available cipher suites.
- D. Create a wildcard certificate.

Answer: D

Explanation:
A wildcard certificate is a certificate that can be used for multiple subdomains of a domain, such as *.example.
com. This would allow the inspection of the data without multiple certificate deployments, as one wildcard certificate can cover all the subdomains that will be separated out with subdomains. Including all available cipher suites may not help with inspecting the data without multiple certificate deployments, as cipher suites are used for negotiating encryption and authentication algorithms, not for verifying certificates. Using a third- party CA (certificate authority) may not help with inspecting the data without multiple certificate deployments, as a third-party CA is an entity that issues and validates certificates, not a type of certificate.
Implementing certificate pinning may not help with inspecting the data without multiple certificate deployments, as certificate pinning is a technique that hardcodes the expected certificate or public key in the application code, not a type of certificate. NEW QUESTION # 524

These files are individualized for each employee and are used in tracking various customer orders, inquiries, and issues. The files are not encrypted and can be accessed by anyone. The senior management team would like to address these issues without interrupting existing processes.
Which of the following should a security architect recommend?

- A. A CRM application to consolidate the data and provision access based on the process and need
- B. A CMDB to report on systems that are not configured to security baselines

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 525

A university issues badges through a homegrown identity management system to all staff and students. Each week during the summer, temporary summer school students arrive and need to be issued a badge to access minimal campus resources. The security team received a report from an outside auditor indicating the homegrown system is not consistent with best practices in the security field and leaves the institution vulnerable.
Which of the following should the security team recommend FIRST?

- A. Beginning research on two-factor authentication to later introduce into the identity management system
- B. Working with procurement and creating a requirements document to select a new IAM system/vendor
- C. Investigating a potential threat identified in logs related to the identity management system
- D. Updating the identity management system to use discretionary access control

Answer: B

Explanation:
Explanation
This is because the homegrown identity management system is not consistent with best practices and leaves the institution vulnerable, which means it needs to be replaced with a more secure and reliable solution. A new IAM system/vendor should be able to provide features such as role-based access control, two-factor authentication, auditing, and compliance that can enhance the security and efficiency of the identity management process. A requirements document can help define the scope, objectives, and criteria for selecting a suitable IAM system/vendor that meets the needs of the institution.
