NEW QUESTION # 28

Inspection results can be used for comparison or validation of models that may have been used for:

- A. POF determination.
- B. fitness for service analysis.
- C. COF determination.
- D. risk analysis.

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to Section 12.6 of API 580:

"The results [of inspections] can also be used for comparison or validation of the models that may have been used for POF determination." This emphasizes the role of inspection feedback in verifying or refining probability models in the RBI process, particularly where degradation rates and failure likelihood are estimated using prior assumptions.

Reference: API 580, 2nd Edition (2016), Section 12.6

NEW QUESTION # 29

Equipment reliability is especially important if leaks can be caused by

- A. Secondary failures, such as loss of utilities
- B. Tertiary failures due to valve gland packing leak
- C. Primary failures such as leak due to severe corrosion

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 30

- C. All of the above
- D. Similar systems at the site or within the company or published data

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 31

The objective of RBI is to:

- A. identify the worst possible consequences of a major leak or equipment failure, including safety, environmental, and/or economic consequences.
- B. determine the damage mechanisms that could occur and cause equipment failure that could lead to loss of containment.
- C. determine what loss of containment incident could occur, and how likely the incident could occur.
- D. determine the likelihood that a major leak could result in a fire, an explosion, or another major consequence.

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to Section 5.2 of API 580:

"One objective of RBI is to determine what incident could occur (consequence) in the event of an equipment failure and how likely (probability) it is that the incident could happen." This is the foundational purpose of RBI: to determine both the likelihood and the consequence of a potential failure event, with specific emphasis on loss of containment.

While B, C, and D are partially true and are part of the broader RBI process, option A captures the exact phrasing and complete intent as outlined in the standard.

Reference: API 580, 2nd Edition (2016), Section 5.2
