AVIXA Certified Technology Specialist Sample Questions (Q205-Q210):

NEW QUESTION # 205

Which of the following is an EQ type?

- A. gate
- B. compressor
- C. limiter
- D. parametric

Answer: D

Explanation:

In audio technology, EQ (equalization) refers to the process of adjusting the balance between different frequency components of an audio signal. EQ types are specifically designed tools that allow sound engineers to manipulate frequencies in different ways. The types of EQ generally fall into categories like graphic, parametric, shelving, and band-pass, among others.

A parametric EQ is a type of equalizer that offers control over three primary parameters:

- * Frequency - the specific frequency to be adjusted.
- * Gain - the amount of boost or cut applied to the selected frequency.
- * Q (Quality Factor) - the bandwidth or range of frequencies affected around the selected frequency.

Unlike other choices, a parametric EQ provides precise control over these settings, making it highly versatile in audio production.

The other options are not types of EQ but rather different types of audio processing tools:

- * Gate: Used to control the amplitude of an audio signal, often to suppress noise below a certain threshold.
- * Limiter: A dynamics processor that prevents a signal from exceeding a set level.
- * Compressor: Reduces the dynamic range of an audio signal by attenuating louder parts above a threshold.

CTS Technology Specialist ReferenceThe use of parametric EQ is a standard practice in AV system design, as outlined in the CTS (Certified Technology Specialist) training materials, which discuss various EQ types and their applications in optimizing audio fidelity. Parametric EQs are favored in professional settings for their flexibility and control over specific frequencies, as compared to fixed-frequency or limited-band EQs.

NEW QUESTION # 206

Which drawing represents a Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP)? Please click anywhere on the correct image.

☐

Answer:

Explanation:

☐

Explanation:

The image in the bottom right represents a Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP).

A Reflected Ceiling Plan (RCP) is a drawing that shows the layout of the ceiling as if it were reflected onto a mirror on the floor. It typically includes details like lighting fixtures, HVAC diffusers, sprinkler heads, and ceiling-mounted AV equipment. In this image, the bottom-right drawing displays these elements, with symbols for speakers, lights, diffusers, and other ceiling-mounted devices, which are characteristic of an RCP.

RCPs are essential in AV installations as they allow AV professionals to plan the placement of ceiling-mounted components, ensuring proper coverage and aesthetics within a room. Other drawings, such as those in the top left and bottom left, depict elevations and floor plans, which do not include ceiling-specific information. The top right diagram is a side view detail, possibly of a projector mount, rather than a ceiling layout.

NEW QUESTION # 207

During the site survey, the client indicates that the space that will become a rear projection room is currently an off-white color. What should be recommended to the client?

- A. use carpeting on the walls
- B. paint the room gray
- C. leave the room as it is
- D. paint the room black

Answer: D

Explanation:

For a rear projection room, it is recommended to paint the room black. Black walls minimize reflections and ambient light, which can negatively impact the quality of the projected image. By reducing these reflections, the contrast and clarity of the projection are improved, providing a better viewing experience. While gray is also a common choice for minimizing light reflections, black is more effective for creating the optimal environment for projection purposes.

NEW QUESTION # 208

When training a new user to operate the solution that has been provided, how should the training be started?

- A. With the system up and running.
- B. With a good joke.
- C. With the system shut down and at a state of rest.
- D. With the display up and running.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 209

The best practice for tagging AV equipment for inventory management is to

- A. only tag Items over $99.00 in value.
- B. include the value of each item on the tag.
- C. label all Items of the same model with a common identifier.
- D. use a unique identifier for each item.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The best practice for tagging AV equipment for inventory management is to use a unique identifier for each item. This ensures that each piece of equipment can be tracked individually, reducing the risk of loss or confusion. Unique identifiers can include barcodes or RFID tags, which facilitate accurate and efficient tracking of inventory. Axis Technology Specialist documentation stresses the importance of unique identifiers in maintaining precise records and managing assets effectively.
