NEW QUESTION # 396

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.

After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.

You have SQL Server 2019 on an Azure virtual machine.

You are troubleshooting performance issues for a query in a SQL Server instance.

To gather more information, you query sys.dm_exec_requests and discover that the wait type is PAGELATCH_UP and the wait_resource is 2:3:905856.

You need to improve system performance.

Solution: You create additional tempdb files.

Does this meet the goal?

- A. Yes
- B. No

Answer: A

Explanation:

Reference:

<https://docs.microsoft.com/en-US/troubleshoot/sql/performance/recommendations-reduce-allocation-contention> Basic Concept:

This question tests database auditing and query visibility. DP-300 expects you to distinguish between collecting audit events, retaining logs, and analyzing query behavior.

Why A is Correct: Yes is related to operational monitoring or tuning, but it must match the exact signal needed: query history, resource utilization, wait/blocking detail, or automatic remediation. This fits the case because the requested outcome is: Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. The selected feature addresses that outcome directly rather than relying on a workaround.

Why B is Wrong: No is related to operational monitoring or tuning, but it must match the exact signal needed: query history, resource utilization, wait/blocking detail, or automatic remediation. It does not expose the required metric, query history, wait/blocking signal, or tuning mechanism; using it would not give the administrator the evidence requested.

NEW QUESTION # 397

You have an Azure subscription.

You need to deploy an Azure SQL managed instance by using an Azure Resource Manager (ARM) template.

The solution must meet the following requirements:

The SQL managed instance must be assigned a unique identity.

The SQL managed instance must be available in the event of an Azure datacenter outage.

How should you complete the template? To answer, drag the appropriate values to the correct targets. Each value may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Explanation:

Basic Concept: This question tests configure and manage automation of tasks in the DP-300 exam context.

The correct choice is determined by the exact service boundary and operational requirement stated in the scenario.

Why the selected answer is Correct: The selected values fit this scenario because they apply the required Azure SQL configuration at the correct scope and sequence: You need to deploy an Azure SQL managed instance by using an Azure Resource Manager (ARM) template.

Why the alternate choices are Wrong: The alternate selections apply to different administrative stages or different scopes. In a hotspot or drag-drop task, order and scope are part of the answer, so a technically valid Azure feature can still be wrong if it is placed in the wrong step.
