NEW QUESTION # 215

What is the default access of a securable object until other access is granted?

- A. Full access
- B. No access
- C. Write access
- D. Read access

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Snowflake, the default access level for any securable object (such as a table, view, or schema) is "No access" until explicit access is granted. This means that when an object is created, only the owner of the object and roles with the necessary privileges can access it. Other users or roles will not have any form of access to the object until it is explicitly granted.

This design adheres to the principle of least privilege, ensuring that access to data is tightly controlled and that users and roles only have the access necessary for their functions. To grant access, the owner of the object or a role with the GRANT option can use the GRANT statement to provide specific privileges to other users or roles.

For example, to grant SELECT access on a table to a specific role, you would use a command similar to:

```
GRANT SELECT ON TABLE my_table TO ROLE my_role;
```

- A. Multi-Factor Authentication (MFA)
- B. End-to-end encryption
- C. Role-Based Access Control (RBAC)
- D. Network policy

Answer: D

Explanation:

A network policy in Snowflake is used to restrict access to the Snowflake account from unauthorized or unknown sources. It allows administrators to specify allowed IP address ranges, thus preventing access from any IP addresses not listed in the policy1.

Which view can be used to determine if a table has frequent row updates or deletes?

- A. STORAGE_DAILY_HISTORY
- B. TABLES
- C. STORAGE_USAGE
- D. TABLE_STORAGE_METRICS

Answer: D

Explanation:

The TABLE_STORAGE_METRICS view can be used to determine if a table has frequent row updates or deletes. This view provides detailed metrics on the storage utilization of tables within Snowflake, including metrics that reflect the impact of DML operations such as updates and deletes on table storage. For example, metrics related to the number of active and deleted rows can help identify tables that experience high levels of row modifications, indicating frequent updates or deletions.
