- A. SNMP
- B. NETCONF
- C. RESTCONF
- D. YANG

Answer: C

Explanation:

RESTCONF is a protocol used for accessing data defined in YANG, using RESTful principles. It is suitable for retrieving configuration data in JSON format from a Cisco CSR 1000 V instance. RESTCONF allows network devices to be managed using HTTP methods, and it supports both XML and JSON as data formats, making it ideal for outputting device configurations in JSON.

NEW QUESTION # 86

What is a characteristic of Waterfall compared to Agile software development method?

- A. Waterfall uses reviews with step by step approach, and Agile uses a serially phased approach.

- B. Waterfall separates the project development lifecycle into sprints, and Agile does not use cycles.
- C. Waterfall focuses on continuous improvement, and Agile focuses on the design phase.
- D. Waterfall specifies requirements before development begins, and Agile responds flexibly to changes in requirements.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Waterfall model is a linear and sequential approach to software development. In Waterfall, all requirements are specified at the beginning of the project, and each phase (e.g., design, implementation, testing) must be completed before moving on to the next. This makes it less adaptable to changes once the project is underway.

Agile, on the other hand, is an iterative approach that allows for flexible responses to changes in requirements.

Agile development is organized into small, incremental cycles called sprints, which typically last 1-4 weeks.

During each sprint, a small portion of the project is developed, and changes can be incorporated based on feedback and evolving requirements.
