Archer Certified Administrator-Expert Sample Questions (Q66-Q71):

NEW QUESTION # 66

As an Archer administrator, you need to run calculations on Exception Requests daily to see if they have expired and update the Overall Status field accordingly. However, when you enable the Recalculation Schedule for the application, the job is taking a long time to run. What step(s) are recommended to speed up the process?

- A. Create a Schedule and use a filter to run the calculation only for those Exception Requests that are Approved.
- B. Use Data-Driven Events by creating a Set Values List action to update the status and associate it with a rule that evaluates the Expiration Date.
- C. Update the value manually.
- D. Update the Overall Status calculation to include an IF statement based on the Expiration Date.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In the Archer platform, the Recalculation Schedule (found within the application's General Tab) is a powerful tool, but it can become a performance bottleneck if not configured efficiently. When a recalculation job is triggered, the Archer services must evaluate every record in the application to determine if calculations need to be updated. According to the Archer Administration II curriculum, the most effective way to optimize this process is by using Calculation Filters .

By selecting option A, you are instructing the system to ignore records that are irrelevant to the specific business logic (e.g., records that are already "Expired," "Rejected," or "Draft"). By filtering the schedule to run only for "Approved" requests, the job engine processes a significantly smaller subset of data, which reduces the load on the Async Service and speeds up the completion time. Option B would likely slow the system down further by adding logical complexity to the calculation itself. Option C (Data-Driven Events) is not suitable for date-based triggers because DDEs only fire upon a record "Save" event; they cannot proactively "watch" a date to trigger a change without user intervention or a scheduled recalculation.

NEW QUESTION # 67

When importing data through the Data Import Wizard, if you choose the Import Type as "Update Existing Records", which of the following is true?

- A. Matching records will be discarded and unmatched records will be added as new records.
- B. Matching records will be updated and unmatched records will be discarded.
- C. A number of the matching records will be updated.
- D. Matching records will be updated and unmatched records will be added as new records.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Data Import Wizard offers three distinct processing modes: "Add New Records," "Update Existing Records," and "Add New and Update Existing Records." According to the Archer Administration II curriculum, the "Update Existing Records" mode is highly restrictive. It is used when an administrator only wants to modify records that already reside in the system.

During the import, Archer uses the specified Key Field(s) to find matches between the source file and the target application. If a match is found, the existing record is updated with the new data from the source file.

However, if a row in the source file does not have a corresponding match in Archer, that row is simply ignored and discarded . No new records are created. This is a safety measure to prevent the accidental creation of "orphan" or duplicate data when the intent is strictly maintenance of existing content. If an administrator wishes to both update matches and create new records for non-matches, they must specifically choose the "Add New and Update Existing Records" (Upsert) option.

NEW QUESTION # 68

What does the Archer Job Monitor front-end report display?

- A. A list of all jobs and their run history
- B. Security alerts
- C. System performance metrics
- D. User access logs

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Archer Job Monitor is a dedicated administrative interface found within the "Administration" workspace. It is the primary dashboard for monitoring the health of the Archer Job Engine . According to the curriculum, the Job Monitor provides visibility into both scheduled and ad-hoc background tasks, including Data Feeds, Data Publication, Notifications, and Recalculations.

The report displays a chronological list of jobs, their current status (Queued, In Progress, Completed, or Failed), and their start/end times. This is the first place an administrator looks if a notification wasn't sent or a data feed didn't update. Unlike "User access logs" (which track logins) or "System performance metrics" (which are found in the ACP or IIS), the Job Monitor is focused strictly on the execution history of background system tasks, allowing administrators to identify bottlenecks or specific job failures without needing access to the server's event logs.

NEW QUESTION # 69

The main goal of using SSO in an Archer environment is to:

- A. Bypass the default Archer Security Parameters for the user
- B. Have end users insert their username and password each time they log into Archer
- C. Facilitate the login experience to end users by using only one set of credentials across all their applications
- D. Facilitate the login experience to Admin users only

Answer: C

Explanation:

The primary driver for Single Sign-On (SSO) in an Archer environment is user convenience and centralized identity management. As taught in Archer Administration II , the "goal" of SSO is to reduce the friction of accessing the platform. By allowing users to leverage their existing corporate credentials (via SAML, Windows Integrated, or LDAP), they can access Archer without needing to maintain a separate, "native" Archer password.

This strategy improves security by centralizing credential management in a single Identity Provider (IdP), where Multi-Factor Authentication (MFA) and account revocation policies can be strictly enforced. Option A is incorrect because SSO actually helps enforce enterprise security parameters rather than bypassing them.

Option B is false because SSO is intended for all users, not just admins. Option C describes the opposite of SSO. Ultimately, the successful implementation of SSO ensures that users have a seamless transition into Archer while the organization maintains a high standard of access control.

NEW QUESTION # 70

What is the main difference between an environment and an instance in Archer?

- A. An instance can host multiple environments.
- B. An environment and an instance are the same.
- C. An environment can host multiple instances, and each instance has its own database and file repository.
- D. An environment is a single system, and an instance is a collection of systems.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Understanding the Archer hierarchy is fundamental to system administration. As detailed in the Archer Administration II curriculum and the Archer Control Panel (ACP) guides, an Environment refers to the overall installation of the Archer software on a set of servers (Web, Services, and Database).

Within a single environment, an administrator can host multiple Instances . Each instance represents a logically isolated "tenant" with its own unique Instance Database , File Repository (for attachments), and set of users. For example, an organization might have one environment that hosts a "Production" instance, a

"UAT" instance, and a "Training" instance. This architecture allows organizations to share the same server hardware and software binaries while keeping the data and configurations of different business units or development stages completely separate and secure from one another.
